Motorist Goes Before Jury On Serious Charge

William P. Cannon Accused of Driving Automobile While Intoxicated as a Second Offense—First Jury Trial in Ulster County on Charge of Driving While Intoxicated—Says He Was Dizzy And Ill After Drinking Beer.

A jury to listen to the testimony in the case of The People vs. William P. Cannon, indicted by the grand jury on a charge of driving a motor vehicle while intoxicated as a second offense, was secured shortly after noon Wednesday and after the noon recess the trial of the case was taken up by the prosecution. This is the first case in the county to be prosecuted under the new law which makes a second offense a felony instead of a misdemeanor. Cannon has twice before entered pleas of guilty to the charge of driving while intoxicated but the act for which he was placed on trial is technically the second offense having been committed since the enactment of the present law.

Duty of Prosecution.

In opening the case District Attorney Traver explained to the jury that it was the duty of the prosecution to prove three things: first, that Cannon had been before convicted of the charge of driving while intoxicated in order that the present violation could be determined the second offense; second, that he did commit a second offense, and also that he was intoxicated at the time.

By the charge it is alleged that Cannon drove his Dodge car on September 8, 1924, from Crown street near North Front street down to Green street, through St. James street and into Pine street where he parked along the curb near Franklin street and then peacefully lay down in the car and went to sleep.

It was in this condition that the local police found him when they arrived on the scene.

Previous Record.

John T. Burke was the first and principal witness called by the prosecution. Mr. Burke was called after Deputy County Clerk Walter G. Geroldsek had testified as to the two former convictions of Cannon in county court and identified the present defendant as the same man. On November 19, 1923, Cannon pleaded guilty to one charge and paid a fine of $100 and was given 30 days in jail, the jail sentence being suspended. He also pleaded guilty to a second violation and was fined $150 and given three months in the county jail but this jail sentence was suspended provided he pay $50 as damages. He paid both fines.

Burke Followed Him.

Mr. Burke testified that he had parked his car on Crown street near North Front street, that he saw Cannon get into his car which was parked ahead, and without signaling drive away. He followed Cannon and noticed that he zig-zagged down the street. He followed over Crown, Green and St. James street and down Pine street until Cannon stopped near Franklin street and lay down in his car. The motor was kept running. Burke then drove to the West Shore station where he notified an officer that there was a car on Pine street which had been driven by a man whom he considered not able to drive. This officer informed him that he could not go back with him as he was on duty at the West Shore. Burke 'phoned the police at headquarters and drove back to Pine street where he awaited them. Officers Martin and Fatum arrived and carried Cannon from his car to the police car and took him away.

What Blanshan Saw.

Everett Blanshan, who was on his way to his garage on Pine street, was called and said he saw Cannon being taken from the Dodge to the police car. He was unable to help himself. He acted as though he was intoxicated.

Testimony of Officers.

Officers Martin and Fatum both testified that Cannon was unable to walk and unable to help himself. They smelled liquor when they placed him in the police car and took him to the jail. He was in such a condition that they had to half lift and half drag him and they took him through the back door to the jail as he was in such a stupefied condition. He tried to talk but was unable. When they found him in his car on Pine street, the motor was running. They tried to rouse him but were unable.

Deputy Sheriff Robert Evers, one of the jailers at the the county jail, testified that Cannon had been received at the jail in a stupefied condition and that after being locked in a cell had shouted and made a disturbance for a couple of hours.

Mr. Burke was unwilling to testify that Cannon was intoxicated but would say that he appeared not able to drive a car. He was not close enough to him to say he smelled liquor on him. He thought it was at least half an hour from the time Cannon stopped his car before the police arrived and took him away.

Cannon Takes Stand.

The People rested and after the usual motion was made by Andrew J. Cook, Cannon's attorney, to dismiss the charge, the defendant was placed on the stand.

Cannon testified that he had come to Kingston to get a gasket for his car, if he stopped the motor it flooded with water and would not start until he had drained the water off. He went to Rondout with a friend and had three drinks of beer there. They returned to North Front street where he left his friend and he then went to a place where he had some more drinks of beer. On cross-examination he was not sure how many he had but thought perhaps two or three or perhaps four. He left and went to the Kingston Hotel where he had more beer. He thought it was either one or two drinks. He left and went to his car and started to the Brown Auto Supply Company store on Broadway to get the gasket. He was not sure if he saw his friend after he first left him on North Front street or not, but he thought he did.

He felt no effects of the beer when he started off except that he felt better; it was a hot day. When he had proceeded as far as St. James street and Fair he began to feel dizzy from the beer. He decided that Broadway was a busy street and he knew that after his former trouble with the police they would be on the lookout for any violation of the law by him so he decided to turn into Pine street which was not a busy street, drive to Franklin street where he knew a boy in a garage, and leave his car there, knowing that he and his car would be taken care of if necessary. He drove down Pine street to Franklin and stopped his car.

He left the motor running in order to prevent it stalling from the water which leaked through the gasket and lay down in the seat and went to sleep. He said he knew the police had arrived but instead of arousing him as they might, they dragged him to the police car before he had chance to get awake, and took him to jail.

On cross-examination he said that he may have turned sharply as he drove down Green and St. James streets in order to avoid holes in the pavement. St. James street was rough and he kept to the center of the road. He said he was not sure if there were holes in the pavement on Green street and St. James between Green and Fair, but he thought he saw holes.

Was Not Intoxicated, He Says.

He could not tell at which place he had the beer which made him dizzy, but was sure he was not intoxicated or dizzy before he arrived at St. James and Fair streets.

Cannon said he had had nothing to drink before coming to Kingston.

It was during 1923 that he was having his hardest battle with liquor, and it was during that summer he had been in all of the trouble. He was not sure how many times he had been arrested during the summer. After that he had taken a pledge and had not been in any further trouble until late in 1924, after the summer boarding season closed. Then he made his trip to Kingston and became involved in the present trouble.

At five o'clock court went into recess until 10 o'clock this morning, with Cannon still being cross-examined by Mr. Traver.

This morning Cannon resumed the stand. He was examined at great length by Mr. Traver and gave a detailed account of his actions on the day he was arrested for driving his car. He denied that he was intoxicated but stated that when he was proceeding along St. James street near Fair street he was taken with a dizzy spell which he could not explain other than it might have been caused by strenuous work which he had performed in the morning prior to his visit to Kingston or from injuries while he was in the army in France in the aerial observation service. This might have been the cause, supplemented by the few glasses of beer he had taken. He said that if he had been allowed to lie down for a time, his condition would have improved and could have driven home.

The case was completed so far as the defence was concerned with the completion of Cannon's testimony. No witnesses were called in rebuttal and the case was closed. Mr. Cook summed up the case for Cannon and Mr. Traver for The People. Judge Fowler delivered his charge to the jury and the case went to the jury about 1 o'clock.

Court went into recess until 2 o'clock.

One Cent Gas Tax Now Proposed

Assemblyman Lord Introduces Bill to Collect That Sum on Gasoline—Bill for Two Cent Tax Already Before Legislature.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 22.—A bill providing for a tax of one cent a gallon on all gasoline sold in New York state was introduced today in the legislature by Assemblyman Bert Lord, Republican of Chenango. Last week Assemblyman Goodrich, Westchester Republican, introduced a bill providing for a tax of two cents a gallon on gasoline.

Lord said his measure would bring in a revenue of between six and seven million dollars, 25 per cent of which would be collected from motorists from other states.

"This tax," said Lord, "would be collected from the big distributors like the Standard Oil Company, which would pay the money in to the state comptroller's office each month with scarcely any expense for collecting. Ten per cent would go to the state highway fund, a certain portion to the state and the balance would be divided between the counties on a basis of highway mileage in the counties. Money so collected would be used for the construction of new roads.

Managing Director of Finance Company Charged With Forgery—Officials Say He Pyramided $100 Debt Into One of Millions.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Jan. 22.—Investigation was continued today by Assistant District Attorney Pecora into the financial operations of Moe Turman, 27, of Brooklyn, who is under indictment on a charge of second degree forgery.

Pecora intimated that other indictments for forgery and possibly for grand larceny are to follow against the would be "Napoleon of finance."

"Turman's narrative is the most interesting I have ever heard," Pecora said. "His own story would tend to show that he was actually in debt $100 when he came here from Chicago and that he pyramided this debt to nearly a million dollars.

According to Turman's story, he evolved a scheme of lending money to merchants to meet cash payments, accepting half of the discount for cash in lieu of interest.

His operations were through the Equity Finance and Service Company of which he was the managing director.

Lawyers Make Many Requests

Eight Prominent New York Law Firms Submit 217 Requests to Judge Clearwater for Inclusion in His Report on Famous Litigation.

There was a brilliant representation of New York lawyers in Kingston on Wednesday, who came here on an application made to Judge Clearwater to settle the decree and findings in the case of Charles S. Martin against William C. Peyton and others, arising out of the $12,000,000 failure of Knauth, Nachod & Kuhne, the New York, London and Paris International Banking firm.

The question whether the Peyton, Perkins and Freeman group, so-called, were partners and therefore liable for the indebtedness of the firm, was tried before the judge as referee in New York last spring and summer, and was determined by him adversely to the contention that they were partners and liable as such. The proceeding Wednesday was to settle the decree?

The lawyers represented were Rushmore, Bisbee & Stern; Hawkins, Delafield & Longfellow; Curtis, Mallet-Provost & Colt; Moore, Hall, Swan & Cunningham; Davies, Auerbach & Cornell; Englehard, Pollak Pitcher & Stern; George W. Elkins and Austen G. Fox.

Two hundred and seventeen requests were presented to Judge Clearwater for embodiment in his decree. At the close of the argument, the judge gave the various counsel until the 5th of February to exchange briefs. On that date, the case finally is to be submitted to him.

Ahavath Israel Buys Church of Holy Spirit

Jewish Congregation Purchases Church and Rectory for $15,000—Episcopal Congregation Dissolved in 1924—Jews to Use Edifice for Church Purposes.

The Congregation Ahavath Israel, which was organized twenty-three years ago, has entered into a contract to purchase the Church of the Holy Spirit on West Pierpont street for $15,000, and will use the edifice for church purposes. The congregation has been holding its services in Weber's Hall on lower Broadway.

The Church of the Holy Spirit was organized in September of 1849, and the present church was erected in the late sixties. For many years the congregation was large in numbers and the church flourished. For several years past, however, the congregation has been dwindling in numbers until but a handful were left. In January, 1924, the church vestry after considerable discussion, decided to dissolve the congregation and close the church.

This was done and no services have been held in the church for over a year. The members of the church when it was closed united either with St. John's Church on Wall street or the Church of the Holy Cross on Pine Grove avenue.

The matter of disposing of the church property was left in the hands of the vestry who met with a committee of five from the Jewish congregation and after talking the matter over the sale was consummated. The committee from the Congregation Ahavath Israel was composed of Rabbi Samuel Spier, Meyer Gasool, Meyer Lifshin, M. Miller and J. Goldman. They were represented in the transaction by Attorney Isidore Sampson. The vestry of the Church of the Holy Spirit was represented by Judge Robert G. Groves.

Now that the contract to purchase the church property has been signed by the Congregation Ahavath Israel, a campaign will be organized to raise the funds needed to complete the purchase price.

The church and the rectory are both purchased under the contract The property has a frontage on West Pierpont street, Wurts street and Spring street. No personal property passes under the contract except the pews in the church and the carpet on the floor.

It is expected that the Congregation Ahavath Israel will make some minor changes to the interior of the church. The exterior will not be touched but will remain as at present. The church is built of stone and it has long been considered one of the finest examples of church architecture in the city.

Jury Disagrees In Weehawken Liquor Cases

Hopelessly Deadlocked After Being Out Seventeen Hours—Stood 9 to 3 for Convicting Ten Policemen and Two Civilians—State Prosecutor Wants Federal Officials To Act.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Jersey City, N. J., Jan. 22.—Judge Charles M. Egan today dismissed the jury in the Hudson county liquor cases who had heard the evidence in the case of ten policemen and two civilians when the jury reported at 10 o'clock that it was hopelessly deadlocked. They had been out since 3:07 yesterday afternoon, and appeared to be tired.

"Gentlemen, have you reached a verdict?" the judge asked.

Henry A. Lauenstein, of Bayonne, N. J., the foreman replied:

"I am sorry to say, judge, we have not—we were unable to reach a verdict."

The men on trial, charged with conspiracy to frustrate justice were: William F. Griffin of Jersey City, alleged leader of the bootlegging "ring;" Harry J. Stearns, councilman and chairman of the police committee of Weehawken; Captain Charles McNamee of the Hudson county boulevard police and Lieutenants Charles Kelling and Philip McNulty and Patrolmen Joseph Daley, John Fisher, Joseph Hennessey, Louis Grunewald, Edward Lewis, John McMahon and Fred Vollmer, all of the Weehawken police department.

The jurors looked wan and haggard.

Hopelessly Disagreed.

When the foreman told the judge that the jurors were "hopelessly disagreed," the judge said:

"Hopelessly? Don't you think that if you went out again for a short time you could arrive at a verdict?"

"No, your honor," the foreman replied. "We have disagreed for 15 hours and we cannot reach a verdict."

"Then, under the circumstances and in view of your sincerity I am compelled to discharge you from further service the balance of the term of this court," the judge said.

9 to 3 for Conviction.

It was understood that the jury stood 9 to 3 for conviction when dismissed. The first vote, it was said, was 8 to 4 for conviction; an hour later it switched to 9 to 3 and remained thus until they finally decided they were hopelessly deadlocked.

Only Griffin, "mystery man" of the trial and characterized by state counsel as "king of the bootleggers," retained the calm that marked him throughout the trial. Not the slightest change of expression passed over his features when the disagreement was announced.

Wants Federal Trial Now.

The prosecution showed no surprise at the verdict. Making it clear that he was speaking only his personal opinion, Assistant Prosecutor Aloysius McMahon, said:

"I think the Federal government should take a hand in this case now. Perhaps a better result could be obtained if the case were tried before a Federal jury."

John Milton, the prosecutor, said there undoubtedly would be a new trial. He added that the drawing of the new jury panel would begin within two weeks.

The twelve men were tried on a charge of conspiracy to violate the Hobart Act, the state prohibition enforcement measure.

Tried to Implicate Edwards.

During the trial the statement was made that $2,500 had been handed to United States Senator Edward I. Edwards, who, it was testified, was to act as an intermediary in a liquor transaction. The deal was not completed and the senator returned the money the next day, testified Lionel Wilson and Charles Hurlbut, Federal agents.

The money, the agents testified, was given to Edwards by Hurlbut to be paid to Griffin.

The defense attacked the credibility of the testimony. Wilson admitted on the stand that he has been convicted of stealing money from telephone coin boxes.

December Death Toll Reached 126

Industrial Fatalities During December in State Increased By Two Over November—Construction and Transportation Have Largest Number.

By Telegraph to The Freeman

Albany, January 22—In a statement made today, Industrial Commissioner James A. Hamilton said, "The records of the Bureau of Workmen's Compensation during the month of December show that 126 death claims were filed at the five district offices In the face of the rather high increase in employment, the increase of but 2 fatalities over November, is an additional indication that from month to month greater interest is being taken in the prevention of industrial accidents and fatalities."

Three district offices—New York city, Albany and Syracuse—reported increases in the number of deaths alleged to have resulted in the course of and in connection with the employment of the workers The other two districts—Buffalo and Rochester—reported decreases in the industrial death toll.

The 125 fatalities were divided among the local offices as follows:

New York city 78, Albany 18, Buffalo 10, Rochester 8, Syracuse 12.

"A tabulation of the industries in which the deceased workers were employed showed that there were very large increases in the number of fatalities in the construction and transportation industries for this month as compared with November" the commissioner added

A decrease of 10 deaths was reported for trade while the chemical industry had a decrease of 4 fatalities and metals and service each reported 3 deaths less than for November.

The distribution by cause of accident of the death claims reported during the month disclosed increases in the number of fatalities due to power working machines, hoisting apparatus and explosions, fires and electricity

One of the deaths reported was of an employe of a corporation engaged in the manufacture and distribution of gas and electricity. He was said to have died from coal gas poisoning.

In the New York district it was reported that a worker 54 years of age, employed as a taxicab starter, died as a result of burns sustained by the ignition of his clothing from contact with an electric heater.

Another death from burns reported for this district was due to the fall of a worker into boiling soap when he slipped while attempting to recover a testing stick which had fallen into it.

From the Albany office came the report of the death of a chauffeur, who succumbed to the poisonous effects of carbon monoxide generated by his own car.

Another worker employed in this district was engaged in clearing the woods preparatory to the construction of a new road. The brush fire spread and he was overcome by smoke.

In the Buffalo district the driver of a truck lost his life in an unsuccessful attempt to cross railroad tracks before the approach of an oncoming train.

This district also reported that a laborer employed by a firm of manufacturing chemists was found dead in a part of a plant that had just been fumigated with hydrocyanic acid gas

The Syracuse reports show that a painter employed by a paper manufacturing firm, was electrocuted when he came in contact with a transformer while painting in the transformer room.

Permanent Perfected Performance

Already—the motor-wise have learned that all this is true. They have learned that these two cars—the New Paige and the New Jewett—possess a combination of qualities never before produced—permanent qualities.

New power results have been engineered without enlarging the ample-size motors. Yes, and without "speeding them up." New smoothness and silence have been created with costly balanced crankshafts, silent chain drive for pump and timing shafts, and many other engineering refinements.

And—Fear No Follies—the motors are sixes. Because we, like the engineers of the world's costliest cars, can find no abler, smoother, sturdier type. Inherently balanced, amply-sized for their jobs, they serve long and economically. More cylinders would only complicate them—reduce efficiency—increase expense to you.

New riding ease comes from springs specially designed to get the full comfort of balloon tires. And permanent steering ease is produced by ball-bearings and special gearing that offset balloon tire friction.

The New Paige and New Jewett possess performance which can fairly be called perfected. Jewett gives it to you in a car of convenient size. Paige in a bigger car with the added advantage of greater size and power. As you experience this performance you realize that there is no step beyond it today.

And it has been produced along proved lines—not experimental. We have retained the fine engineering features which our years of use have proved permanently satisfying:

The Paige-Jewett saw-blade steel clutch that engages so softly and with Paige-Jewett transmission makes gear-shifting effortless. And practically noiseless even in shifting from high to second at 30 miles an hour! The all-steel universal joints with sealed-in oil that lasts for 15,000 miles and postpones wear and back-lash many years.

These and many other features proved in millions of miles' service, could not be bettered.

All these new advantages cost you nothing more. Paige and Jewett prices have not been increased. Judged by comparable cars—both the New Paige and the New Jewett are underpriced $150 to $200.

TODAY WE CELEBRATE

BUCCANEERS.

The first act in the long and bloody drama played by the buccaneers of the Spanish Main was staged at Tortuga 287 years ago today, when the Spaniards massacred all the settlers they could find on that island. Tortuga was at that time the headquarters of the bucaneers, who were at that time sea-traders and smugglers rather than sea robbers. About 300 of them were absent from the island at the time of the slaughter, and when they returned and found their comrades had been ruthlessly butchered, they raised the black flag and declared war on Spain and the Spaniards.

Driven from Tortuga they found refuge in Jamaica, and from that time they constituted a mercenary navy, ready for employment against Spain by any other nation, on condition of sharing the loot obtained from Spanish ships. Both France and England were at various times employers of these seamen, and at other times they acted independently. In the course of time the profession of buccaneer was frowned upon, and the sea-rovers turned pirates, preying on the commerce of all nations.

ANNE THICKNESSE.

Anne Thicknesse was born in the Temple, in London, in 1737. Her beauty and talents early introduced her into the world of fashion. She gave three concerts on her own account having left her father's house to avoid being forced into marriage. By her concerts she is said to have realized a thousand five hundred pounds,—a remarkable sum for that period,—and acquiring the patronage of Lady Betty Thicknesse, became domesticated in her family.

On the death of this lady she married Governor Thicknesse, and accompanied her husband on various journeys. She was with him in France when he died in 1792, and narrowly escaped execution, Robespierre having sent an order to that effect. On her liberation she returned to England, and died at her house on the Edgeware Road, in 1824. Her principal works are "Biogragraphical Sketches of the Literary Females of The French Nation," and "The School of Fashion" a novel.

ANNIVERSARY OF SIR FRANCIS BACON.

The first of the great modern scientists was Sir Francis Bacon, Lord Verulam, Viscount St. Alban, who was born in London 364 years ago today. The "father of modern science" was the son of an eminent lawyer. He received but little from his father's estate and took up law as a means of livelihood. In politics and the law he did not shine, but in literature and science, especially the latter, he was supreme. In fact, in Bacon's day as in ours, many politicians and lawyers looked with contempt on any attempt to "change the existing order of thought"—and no doubt in the London of Bacon's day he was thought by some of the smug gentry to be a mere idler and dreamer—and they the men of substance—today their names are forgotten—but the name of Francis Bacon is one that will never be forgotten. It will be remembered as long as that of the Bard of Avon's, which reminds us that many people believe that Bacon wrote the works attributed to Shakespeare, but the admirers of the bard want "to be shown."

Dinner and Dance Frocks.

The dinner gowns and dance frocks … this season are among the most artistic costumes, and match in beauty and grace the models of earlier times. With daring and assurance the leading creators of Paris have presented the most important styles in models of elaborate simplicity and grace, done in splendid fabrics, beautiful colors and detail of much interest. Unheard of combinations have been successfully achieved with the use of rich brocades, velvets, fur, metals, laces and gauzy tissues. And the proof of their value is the appreciative response of cultivated taste, for women of today are discriminating.

With a sure touch the folk crafts of old countries are used to ornament the latest achievements of the loom, and peasant-woven woolen embroiders the sheerest spun silks. That these extremes are made to meet with results wholly artistic is a tribute to the talent and skill that are given to the subject of dress and the important place it has come to have in the estimate of artists of the highest standing.

One style of dress that has needed no argument for its presentation is the "period" costume. Nothing has ever expressed better the subtlety and charm of the swish of silken skirts, and more beauty is suggested by the skirt of many folds than is revealed by the clinging lines of scant drapery. Designed long ago, the quaint frock with plain, tight bodice, the neck outlined with a demure bertha, a waistline unexaggerated and wide and full skirts have come back to fascinate the belle of today and to give her a conscious air of something that bears the stamp of tradition.

Ensemble in Copenhagen Blue Is Bordered With Otter.

Every girl loves to wear this dress reminiscent of the crinoline period. While it graces every one, only an occasional woman appears in it with ease and distinction. This season some of the most prominent modistes and the most exclusive shops in New York have featured the period dress, depending upon material and color for whatever variants they have offered, and its popularity continues undiminished.

The new crisp taffetas in plain colors and the "shot" silks are entrancing in these full-petticoated frocks, and a bertha of real lace is never seen to better advantage. One model which will have an enduring picture value is made of black chiffon velvet, the collar of old rose point pinned with an old brooch of seed pearls. Long medallion earrings match brooch and necklace, and a cluster of gardenias is fastened at one side of the belt. Nothing in the styles of the present day illustrates more happily and truly the elegance and beauty of the dress of earlier times.

Elimination of Barbarities.

In just what manner the styles of today will develop, which way they will be swayed by fashion and fancy, cannot be foreseen. But that they have now a place of increasing importance in the world of art and convention is quite plain. And whatever of folly, extravagance or lack of taste or propriety appears in the present modes, we have come a long way in the elimination of some barbarities that will not likely be seen again. For now that tight stays and collars, Louis Quinze heels for walking, and skirts that sweep the pavement are no longer fashionable, they are certainly obsolete and their extreme opposites that add so much to the joy and comfort of life will endure.

The style of wearing street gloves with the cuffs turned down over the hand has resulted in special designs in the finish of the lining which adds much to the appearance of the glove. Because of this fad the cuff lining is strikingly emphasized and has become more important than the ornamentation of the outside covering. In some instances it is literally a "silver lining" of silvered kid or cloth of silver or stitching done with silver tinsel thread.

A modish glove has a cutout pattern of the kid showing a contrasting color underneath, which is particularly smart when done in black and white. Those in tan and white, brown and white and gray and white are also attractive. The patterns in needlework on the cuff lining are countless and some are exceedingly pretty.

Comparison of French and English Housewives

It is said that the French working woman's only thoughts concern food and money. She certainly manipulates the former with great skill and, as is well known, her savings are the backbone of her country. Whenever a fresh loan is floated in France long queues of housewives are always waiting outside the banks with their money.

In running a household in France one soon finds out that the maids must be well fed. They will put up with sleeping accommodations which British maids would not tolerate, but there is no compromise on food, says a writer in London Answers.

A cook, though she will keep her pots and pans spotlessly clean, will not wash a floor with much zeal. The hardest-working French women, it is interesting to note, have, as a rule, perfectly kept hands.

French women tell me that there is more love in a French home than in a British one, and that they are more concerned with the family well-being than we are.

Gossip, largely locally critical in character, is rife among better-class French women. Their talk, indeed, is criticism, criticism, and always criticism. There is jealousy for the woman who looks nice and laughter for the one who doesn't. A French woman will not admit to age until it is really upon her. Then, socially, she becomes indeed a back number.

Spirit is said to be the keynote of a French woman's character. Armed with it, she never admits defeat whether in the world of commerce or of conquest. And this spirit, with which she "downs" a rival, enables her also to cheer on her husband to fame and fortune.

Location of Famous London Well Unknown

Even before the Norman conquest the holy well of St. Clement, London, used to be the scene of many pilgrimages, and these continued until the Reformation. It used to be the favorite trysting place for lads and lassies on summer evenings, in the time when the Strand of London was a country road and not the important London thoroughfare it is today. The site of the old well is believed to lie somewhere between the law courts in the Strand and St. Clement's Inn.

Within a few yards of the site of the well stands the church of St. Clement, whose bells are famed in nursery rhyme. Here Doctor Johnson used to have a pew, but there is no record of his ever having visited the well—which was only bricked over when the present law courts were built.—Kansas City Star.

TWO KINDS OF SNOBS.

It is interesting to note the unfailing eagerness of the man without known ancestry to "knock" the man with it. Recalling an acquaintance "who came from an old Virginia family," Heywood Broun writes: "After hours, when he got drunk, he used to pull up one trouser leg and say, 'See that foot and ankle. It took a thousand years to make that foot and ankle. That's what breeding does.' It was a small foot and the ankle tapered. I never entered into public competition with him, but in seclusion I observed my own feet and ankles and I could not deny that they seemed to indicate a rush job. There wasn't much ankle and I wear a 13 shoe." The point made by Heywood Broun—indirectly—is that nevertheless he is a success and the ancestor-weighted Virginian is a failure. The point that he overlooks—directly—is that the man with worthy ancestors is by no means always either a failure or a fool.

Mr. Broun's conclusions, summerized, are that he is not a "gentleman" in the accepted sense and that it is not worth while trying to be one; the required habits are too much trouble and rather foolish at that, so it is better to do without them. "I don't have to keep popping up and down from the easy chair because it happens to be a mixed tea party and there are entrances and exits. When I was trying to be a gentleman, I had to hold a newspaper in front of my eyes while riding in the subway, so as not to be remorseful because women passengers were standing. Now, I just sit." Mr. Broun seems convinced that he thus pictures himself as a person much superior to a "gentleman," but even among the devoted readers of his column in the New York World there may be those who will doubt it.

OUR SHARE IN REPARATIONS.

It has been decided that the United States is to get six hundred million dollars—$25,000,000 a year for 25 years—out of the payments to be made by Germany under the Dawes plan, in settlement of our claims against Germany for war damages. It was at first contended by the Allies, and not unreasonably so far as theory goes, that, inasmuch as the Dawes receipts are collected under the Versailles treaty, and inasmuch as the United States refused to be a party to that treaty, we had no legal right to share in the payments. But after the preliminary discussions the Allies dropped their contention and agreed for the United States to come in on the payments notwithstanding its repudiation of the treaty under which the payments are to be made.

In this the Allies acted very shrewdly in their own interests. By surrendering to the United States its moderate share they gain much more than they will lose. For the interests of this country are now bound up with theirs. Any effort on the part of Germany to stop payments will affect all alike, and the United States will be actively interested in seeing to it that Germany continues to make the payments as agreed. With the United States thus backing the Allies, Germany's effort to fulfill the obligation is likely to be more earnest and persistent than it might be otherwise. It is safe to say that the agreement pleases the Allies much more than it pleases Germany, which from the outset has banked on the creation of anti-Ally sentiment in the United States.

Clear weather on the morning of January 24 will enable the interested to get a good view of the sun's eclipse. Recalling another total eclipse of the sun, as seen when a boy in Iowa 57 years ago, a Brooklyn clergyman writes that, though nobody was really afraid, he distinctly remembers that while the darkness lasted the people stood in what seemed to be awed silence, and at its close burst into cheers and shouts of a kind that indicated something very much like relief.

Referring to the case of Governor Len Small of Illinois, the New York Herald-Tribune remarks that "nothing in the muck-raking stories and plays so common a generation ago could surpass in sardonic humor this spectacle of a Governor accused of depositing State moneys in a mythical bank at a minimum rate of interest, reloaning them at a higher rate to the Chicago packers, pocketing the difference, and getting re-elected in spite of it." Well, there have been other indications that voters either care little or forget all about announcements of corruption in office."

MUSCLE PAIN.

You have a burning or perhaps a "cuting" pain in the side of the chest. Every time you breathe the pain becomse worse.

Your natural conclusion is that you must have pleurisy and you become alarmed.

You get home and to bed, and your physician makes an examination for you.

After taking your temperature and pulse, and listening to your chest, he reassures you by telling you that it is only the muscles of the chest that are on the outside of the ribs, that are at fault.

You perhaps get a pain between the shoulder blades, and it is likewise found to be in the muscles, or really on the outside of your body.

Sometimes a pain directly over the heart has caused you some anxiety, until your doctor told you that the pain was really in the muscles of the chest.

A pain in the small of the back has immediately brought visions of severe kidney trouble, until again reassured that it was simply the muscles in that region that were affected, and not the kidneys themselves.

Now, what about this pain?

For many years it was called muscular rheumatism, but latterly it has been called myalgia, meaning simply muscle pain.

And the cause?

No definite cause has been found as yet, but there are certain things that stand out as possible causes. Nearly every time there is a history of exposure to cold, dampness or a draft.

But two people may be exposed to the same cause, both wearing same amount of clothing and so forth, yet one is attacked by this pain and the other escapes entirely.

Why?

This is because in the one affected there must be some infection lying quietly in the tissues, due to constipation, bad teeth or tonsils, or other condition.

The dampness or draft cools or chills the blood and it loses its resistive power.

And the treatment?

Heat is the big factor at first, with light massage later.

Drugs should not be used, except perhaps aspirin in full doses for a couple of days. Sweating is, of course, indicated, and the heat and aspirin accomplish this.

A debt discovered to be worthless and charged off the books of the taxpayer for the year 1924 may be deducted from the gross income in computing net income for that year. The return must show evidence of the manner in which the worthlessness of the debt was discovered and that ordinary and legal means for its collection have been or would be unavailing.

Bad debts may be deducted in whole or in part. When deducted, the taxpayer must be able to show with a reasonable degree of certainty the amount uncollectable. Partial deductions are allowed with respect to specific debts only.

A valid debt proved to be worthless may not always be a proper deduction. For example, unpaid amounts representing wages, rentals or similiar items are not allowed as deductions unless included as gross income in the creditor's return for the year in which the deduction is sought or in a previous year. The fact that expected income was not received does not reduce the amount of taxable income of the creditor.

Unpaid loans made to needy relatives or friends with little or no expectation that they would be repaid are not deductible, but are regarded as gifts.

MEN'S CLOTHES INCREASED MORE THAN WOMEN'S.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Jan. 22.—Prices of a fair grade of inexpensive clothing which would normally be purchased by families in modest circumstances dropped about eight-tenths of one per cent during the year ending November, 1924, says the National Industrial Conference Board, 247 Park avenue, New York city. This is a reversal of the trend of prices which obtained from the summer of 1922 to November, 1923. It may seem small when compared with the total increase in clothing prices of 73 per cent over the 1914 price, but may be encouraging when it is pointed out that it forms part of the 35 per cent drop that has taken place since March, 1920, when clothing prices were at their peak. This suggests that the rise in 1922-1923 may have been only a temporary interruption in the downward course. The figures on which these statements are based were obtained from 172 dealers in 78 cities.

The average advance in the cost of a year's allowance of clothing from 1914 to November, 1924, was 81 per cent for men and a little more than 64 per cent for women.

The largest increases in yard goods and wearing apparel during the year ending November, 1924, were for men's felt hats, 5.3 per cent; percale, 5 per cent; broadcloth, 4.9 per cent; longcloth, 4.5 ped cent; men's union suits, 4 per cent. The largest decreases were for women's velvet hats, 6.6 per cent; women's straw hats, 5.2 per cent; the less expensive grade of men's work shirts, 4 per cent; and women's cape kid gloves, 3 per cent.

COLLECTOR CANNOT GRANT TAX RETURN EXTENSION

Cyrus Durey, Collector of Internal Revenue, for the Fourteenth District of New York, has issued the following statement:

"Section 227(a) of the Revenue Act of 1924 provides that the Commissioner may grant a reasonable extension of time for filing income tax returns, if application therefore is made before the date prescribed by law for filing the return. Attention is invited to the fact that under the Revenue Act of 1924 the collector does not have authority to grant extensions in the case of income tax returns."

Any taxpayer desiring an extension of time in which to file their 1924 federal income tax return, (which is due March 15, 1925) must make an application for such extension to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, Washington, D. C.

END OF THE JAZZ TRAIL

Dorothy Ellingson's headlong career of jazz, drinking and late hours brought her behind bars facing a charge of murder for the confessed slaying of her mother. Here is Dorothy pictured in her cell at the county jail shortly after her arrest. Her flippancy is gone, but there seems to be little of regret or sorrow in her attitude—scarcely a realization of the enormity of her crime. "Sorry? Of course I'm sorry. But what good does that do?" That was her comment on the murder. But not a tear, not even a break in her voice for the mother whom she sent to death with a bullet.—Photo by International News Service.

Why Many Mothers Are Thin and Pale.

No one perhaps suffers a greater drain on strength, nerve force and vitality than the woman who has children to care for. Yet Science has now perfected a remarkable new strength-giving combination which has enabled thousands of nervous, tired-out mothers, often in only a few short weeks, to build up and renew their strength, energy and physical and mental endurance.

Any doctor will tell you that a great many mothers lack sufficient iron—organic iron in the blood. Without sufficient of this organic iron nothing you eat does you the proper amount of good. You don't get the strength out of it, so you become weak, pale and haggard-looking, nervous, irritable and easily upset.

In such cases what you need is organic iron—Nuxated Iron—to enrich the blood, and revitalize worn-out nerves. For Nuxated Iron is organic iron, like the iron in your blood, and like that in spinach and lentils. Try it for just two weeks and notice the marvelous improvement. Money back if not delighted. But be sure you get genuine Nuxated Iron, with the letters NI on every tablet. This is the only kind sold under this absolute guarantee. At all good druggists.

Literally a Miracle

That great mystery of time, were there no other, the illimitable, silent, never-resting thing called time, rolling, rushing on, swift, silent, like an all-embracing ocean tide, on which we and all the universe swim like exhalations, like apparitions, which are and then are not; this is forever literally a miracle—a thing to strike us dumb, for we have no words to speak about it.—Carlyle.

6,922 KILLED BY TRAINS IN 1923

Of This Number 2,779 Were Trespassers and 138 Passengers.

Washington.—There were 6,922 persons killed and 56,464 injured in connection with the operation of trains in the United States in 1923, according to statistics gathered by the bureau of safety of the interstate commerce commission. Of those killed the toll among trespassers was the highest, while employees suffered the most from injuries. Summarized, the casualties follow: Trespassers, 2,779 killed, 3,047 injured; employees, 1,645 killed, 39,734 injured; persons carried under contract, such as mail clerks, pullman conductors, 21 killed, 674 injured; other nontrespassers, 2,339 killed, 7,162 injured.

There were 103 employees killed and 1,954 injured in coupling or uncoupling locomotives or cars, compared with 81 killed and 1,498 injured in 1922. Casualties to employees due to coming in contact with fixed structures resulted in 47 killed and 861 injured. There were 105 employees killed and 8,167 injured in getting on or off cars or locomotives.

A rapid increase was noted in the number of accidents at grade crossings. In this connection the report said:

"During the calendar year 1923 there were 5,218 accidents at highway grade crossings, which resulted in the death of 2,268 persons and the injury of 6,314. Automobiles figured in 4,907 of these accidents, 1,759 persons being killed and 5,416 injured. There were 18 derailments of trains as a result of collisions between trains and automobiles, causing the death of 10 persons and the injury of 77. In addition, there were six derailments of trains as a result of collisions with automobiles, but without death or personal injury.

"We have participated with the National Association of Railroad and Utilities Commissioners in the effort to devise ways and means for decreasing accidents at railroad grade crossings. We were represented at a conference on prevention of such accidents held in Chicago April 30-May 1, 1924, called by H. G. Taylor, president of the association, pursuant to a resolution adopted at the last annual convention. The conference was attended by representatives of many railroads, state commissions, the American Association of State Highway Officials, United States bureau of public roads, National Safety council, American Automobile association, United States Chamber of Commerce, American Railway association and other organizations. One of the main purposes of this conference was to determine ways of co-ordinating the efforts of all organizations engaged in promoting safety at grade crossings. Our bureau of safety is in touch with what is being done by state commissions and others actively engaged in accident-prevention work."

Inspection Service.

Concerning investigation of brakes and safety appliances, the report says: "Approximately 1,170,000 cars and locomotives were inspected. The number per 1,000 inspected which were found with defective safety appliances was 52.73. The corresponding record for the preceding year, during which the shopmen's strike occurred, was 100.81 and for the year ended June 30, 1922, it was 50.54.

"Hours of service reports were filed by 1,166 railroads, of which 786 reported no instances of service in excess of the limit prescribed by law. Three hundred and eighty railroads reported a total of 48,222 instances of excess service, this number representing a decrease of 26.4 per cent compared with the preceding year.

"We investigated 100 train accidents, of which 52 were collisions and 48 were derailments. The collisions resulted in the death of 119 and the injury of 928 persons; the derailments resulted in the death of 127 and the injury of 572 persons, a total of 246 killed and 1,500 injured.

"The percentage of locomotives found defective decreased from 65 per cent during the year 1923 to 58.4 per cent during the last year, but it is still higher than during the year 1922, when 48 per cent of the locomotives inspected by our inspectors were found defective.

"There were 43 boiler explosions, which resulted in the death of 45 and the serious injury of 50 persons, a decrease in the number of explosions of 24.6 per cent as compared with the preceding year, but an increase of 30 per cent over the year 1922.

"Most of these explosions were caused by overheating of the crown-sheet because of low water in the boiler, although contributory defects or causes were found in 32.4 per cent of the cases. The necessity for better construction, inspection and repair of all parts and appurtenances is apparent."

Tokyo Regains People

Tokyo.—Tokyo has resumed her place as the fifth city of the world, according to a police census taken here recently. After the earthquake of September, 1923, Tokyo lost a quarter of her population and dropped behind Berlin. The police enumeration shows that the city now has 1,917,000 inhabitants, a gain of 300,000 from the figures just after the earthquake, but 260,000 less than before the disaster.

THE HAT OF THE MOMENT.

(By Eleanor Gunn.)

For southern wear brims have extended, but for town wear hats remain rather close-fitting, although their crowns and brims have a fascinating way of doing the unexpected.

Color is spoken of with enthusiasm by those who have been privileged to see the new French models, and while flowers are being played up, there are, of course, many types of hats better for their omission—curiously enough, these are not necessarily of the sports genre, for many a smart felt sports hat has a bunch of violets, a gardenia, or some close-fitting arrangement of flowers. It is the hat which tops the town tailleur which should be trim and have as its decoration a feather or bow, a tassel or ornament.

Felts are to be allowed to continue their triumphal career, and are often faced with straw, for those who like to rush into spring hats in a snow storm. Crowns while high, are not all necessarily of the Alpine type. Many of them are curiously grooved and eccentric in shape, with a feather curling out from side or peak, for, barring the fact that brims turn up and not down, most of the silhouette interest is in the crown, and most of the trimming rests or juts out from it.

Where Moses Was Hidden

Opposite Cairo lies the island of Roda, where, according to Arab tradition, Pharaoh's daughter found Moses in the bulrushes. At the southern extremity of this island is the nilometer, by which the rise of the Nile has been measured by the Caliphs for 1,000 years. It is a square well with an octagonal pillar marked in cubits in the center.

Food for Goldfish

Animalculae in water are not sufficient food for goldfish. If commercial fish food is not available, goldfish may be fed crushed vermicelli, ants' eggs, small worms, aquatic larvae and green stuff in the form of lettuce and water cress. Bread crumbs may be used, but they should not be allowed to stand in the water.

Varnish for Wall Paper

A home-furnishing suggestion is the use of varnish applied to wall paper. By this means it is said that the paper is preserved longer than ordinarily, and when necessary it can be cleaned with a damp cloth. The rather shiny finish might, however, prove a drawback.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

By Mary Graham Bonner

THE ADJUTANT BIRD

"Heigh-ho," said the Adjutant Bird in the zoo.

"Heigh-ho," said Billie Brownie.

Of course, as surely you all know full well, Billie Brownie was given permission by Old Mother Nature to go about and visit for children.

Not only that! He was given the power to understand what all the different creatures had to say—so he could understand their languages.

They could understand him, too, for he knew their talk and how to use words they knew.

The Adjutant Bird was in the best of spirits.

"Heigh-ho," he said again.

"Heigh-ho," Billie Brownie said again, too.

"Glad to see you," the Adjutant Bird said. "How is life treating you?"

He had heard people at the zoo talking in this fashion and he thought it sounded very fine.

"Splendidly," said Billie Brownie. "And how about you?"

"Never better, never better," said the Adjutant Bird. "I feel pretty spry and active.

"You know I've been thinking of the days back in India when I used to fish in the shallow water, and when I used to go about and do my good work.

"Oh, I was given to doing a great deal of good work in those days.

"Yes, I had a good name, too. Every one spoke well of me. I did things others would have scorned to do.

"But I said to myself:

"'Young Adjutant, your family has always been a fine one, honored and such, and so why shouldn't you, too, do the good work they have always done?'

"You see we're great for going about and picking up all sorts of rubbish and eating it.

"We're great helpers in the work we do in keeping places clean.

"But instead of gathering up rubbish and putting it in a big wagon and then taking it down to a river and then putting it in an old scow and then taking it off somewhere and burning it—goodness, mercy me, but I am almost out of breath! Instead of doing all that, we just eat it.

"I Feel Pretty Spry."

"That saves so much labor and effort and trouble.

"Think of the time it takes to do all those things I've just mentioned."

"You certainly do know how to save time," Billie Brownie smiled.

"Yes," continued the Adjutant Bird, "and what is more, I enjoy myself.

"Work and play—all mixed together. Fine combination, fine."

"Well," said Billie Brownie, "I'm glad to hear of this work your family is famed for doing and I'm pleased that it pleases you!

"It wouldn't be exactly my choice of a job, but we all like different things, which is fortunate.

"There would be dreadful confusion if everyone wanted to do just the same as everyone else.

"I'm delighted to have seen you and I shall tell them all back in Brownieland and Fairyland of the ways of the Adjutant family."

"My beak and my wings will burn," said the Adjutant Bird.

"What?" asked Billie Brownie.

"Well, I've heard the children who've come to the zoo speaking of ears that burn when people talk about them, and as my beak and my wings are so much more prominent and important I thought I'd use them in my speech instead."

"I see, I see, chuckled Billie Brownie as he waved a farewell.

Looking for His Dollar

Billy was carrying a dollar bill in his pocket, and one day while visiting on the farm he lost the bill while feeding hay to the calf. He lamented about it and came to the conclusion that the calf ate his dollar. Several weeks later after our return to the city we had liver one night for dinner.

I said: "Billy, you do not seem to care much for the liver."

"No, mother, I don't. I am just looking for my dollar bill."

An Indian Giver

Jack was invited to a birthday party, and as his mother was unable to go to town to buy a present she gave him 50 cents to give to Bobby.

When Jack returned she noticed he still had the money.

"Why, Jack?" she said. "Didn't you give Bobby the 50 cents as I told you to?"

"I did, mother," he replied, "but I had to fight him to get it back."

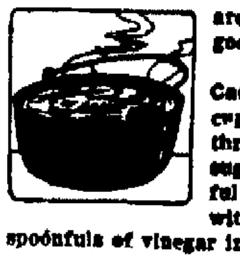
SWEETS FOR YOUNGSTERS



There is nothing which pleases the youngsters like an old-fashioned candy pull. Here are two that make good candy to pull.

Velvet Molasses Candy.—Put one cupful of molasses, three cupfuls of sugar, and one cupful of boiling water with three tablespoonfuls of vinegar in a kettle on the range. Bring to the boiling point and add one-half teaspoonful of cream of tartar. Boil until when tried in cold water the mixture becomes brittle. Stir constantly during the last part of the cooking. When almost ready to take off the range add one-half cupful of melted butter and one-fourth teaspoonful of soda. Pour into a buttered pan and pull when cool enough to handle. Add one teaspoonful of vanilla, and one-half teaspoonful of lemon extract, peppermint or wintergreen for flavor, while pulling. When pulling handle the candy with the tips of the fingers and thumbs. Cut into pieces with large shears or a knife and arrange on buttered plates to cool.

Molasses Candy.—Take two cupfuls of Porto Rico molasses, two-thirds of a cupful of sugar, add three tablespoonfuls of butter to a Scotch kettle and when melted add the sugar and molasses with three tablespoonfuls of vinegar. Boil until brittle when tried in cold water. Pour out on buttered platter to cool, then pull. Here is still another good one:

Pinoche.—Add one-half cupful of milk to one cupful of brown and white sugar, stir until dissolved, then boil to the soft-ball stage. Add one-half cupful of pecan meats, vanilla to flavor, and beat until creamy. Pour into well-buttered patty pans and if they are to be made into lollipops put a small wooden skewer into each and wrap in waxed paper.

Butter Scotch.—Take one cupful of sugar, one-fourth cupful of molasses, one tablespoonful of vinegar, two tablespoonfuls of boiling water and one-half cupful of butter. Boil until brittle when tried in cold water. Turn into a buttered pan and when slightly cool mark with a sharp-pointed knife into squares.

Madagascar Once Home of Enormous Reptiles

It is a singular fact that, barring the wild cattle and the crocodiles, the great African island (Madagascar) is wholly destitute of big game. Yet it teems with animal life in its lesser forms, including such curious animals as the aye-aye, one of the most remarkable creatures known; 39 varieties of lemurs; a ferocious member of the civet family, which looks like an enormous weasel; and a wild dog which appears to be a cross between a coyote, a jackal and a dingo.

But Madagascar has not always lacked large animals, as its fossil remains attest, for in ages past it was the habitat of enormous terrestrial lizards 30 feet in length, and of the great wingless bird, the aepyornis, twice the size of an ostrich.

The eggs of the aepyornis, some of which are 40 inches in circumference, are still frequently found in the neighborhood of Fort Dauphin, at the southern end of the island, where the natives use them for carrying water.—E. Alexander Powell in the Century Magazine.

Raspberry Mosaic In Hudson Valley

Disease Spreads Rapidly in New Stock—Latham Stock Diseased—Result of Experiments by Agricultural Officials.

With the failure of raspberry plantings in the Hudson valley, investigations were begun by plant disease specialists at the state experiment station at Geneva to discover the cause of the trouble and, if possible, to find the remedy. Raspberry mosaic, said to be spread by aphids passing from plant to plant, was found to be the principal cause of the failure; and the use of mosaic-free planting stock, a method which had proved successful in combating mosaic elsewhere, was recommended experimentally as a possible solution of the trouble in the Hudson valley. Results to date are not satisfactory, say the station specialists, as the disease is spreading more rapidly in the new plantings than was expected. It is believed that this may be due to new carriers of the disease in this section of the state and further studies are under way in an effort to determine this point.

"The two new varieties Cayuga and Seneca seem to be well suited to Hudson valley conditions and have met with general favor," says a statement on the subject just issued by the station. "These two varieties unfortunately become rapidly reinfected with mosaic. The standard variety Cuthbert seems to remain freer from mosaic than the others tested and it may prove that this variety may be successfully grown with careful attention given to roguing for mosaic."

Claims for Latham Unfounded.

"A new variety, the Latham, developed by the Minnesota Experiment Station has been advertised in the Hudson Valley as resistant to mosaic This and other claims made for Latham, including the statement that it is endorsed by the station at Geneva, are untrue. As a matter of fact, observations made by officials of this station have shown that mosaic spreads rapidly in the Latham in the Hudson Valley, while Minnesota officials state that Latham is generally affected with mosiac in that state. It has been observed both in Minnesota and New York, however, that Latham produces fairly well in spite of mosaic, although in Minnesota mosaic is known to reduce yields considerably, when partially diseased plantings are compared with disease-free Latham plantings

"Knowing these facts about the Latham, the Geneva Station has never stated that this variety was resistant to mosaic to the extent that it solved the mosaic problem for the Hudson Valley. Any statement that the nursery law requiring the inspection and certification of raspberry stock does not apply to the Latham or Herbert is incorrect. The law applies to all varieties.

"It cannot be stated at present what the ultimate solution of the raspberry mosaic problem may be. A truly resistant variety may possibly be forthcoming from such work as is now in progress at the station. Methods of protecting susceptible varieties from infection are being sought. The Hudson Valley Fruit Investigations Laboratory at Poughkeepsie, a branch of the State Station at Geneva, is also giving considerable attention to this work."

THE WHY, WHEN AND WHERE OF FASHIONS

High Crowns.

That crowns have been gaining in both height and width, everyone must have observed. This, like every fashion, has come and gone before.

For instance, when Isabelle of Bavaria entered Paris in July, 1385, to marry King Charles VI, of all the splendor the pleasure-loving young princess displayed, her headdress made the good French gasp. It was several feet high, and conic-shaped with a veil hanging from the tip, and with it she established a fashion which lasted well into the beginning of the following century.

She came from Bavaria, which, in national costume, showed close relationship with Tyrol. As a matter of fact, Isabelle's sensational headdress was the first historic display of the Tyrolean crown which now again is in fashion.

The next time the high-crowned hats appeared was around 1797-1798. The high and elaborately trimmed hair dressing of the ancient regime was abolished and the more practical hat was introduced. A strong leaning toward freedom-loving England brought the English type of beaver hat into favor.

High crowns again appear as part of the poke bonnets, during the first quarter of the XIX century. The wide skirts required a corresponding heightening of the head to maintain a balance of proportion. Another revival of the Tyrolean crown was well within the memory of the present generation, as it was launched at the dawn of the present century in the shape of the "peach basket hat."

Big Pickerel at Ulster Heights.

One of the biggest pickerel taken in this section in some time was caught through the ice in Ulster Heights pond recently by Fred Rose, says the Ellenville Journal. The fish measured 28 inches in length and weighed five pounds and 12 ounces. The party, which consisted of Fred Rose, Will Hinman of Middletown and George Whiting took a dozen other pickerel in addition to the big fellow.

Farm Bureau Taking Vote

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Ithaca, N. Y., Jan. 22.—A statewide referendum of farmer opinion concerning the ratification by New York State of the Child Labor amendment is now being taken by the county farm bureaus of the state at the request of Enos Lee, president of the New York State Farm Bureau Federation, it was stated at the farm bureau office here today. Upon the results of the referendum will depend the attitude of the various farm organizations of the state as it is expected the organization will follow the lead of the farm bureau in the matter.

The American Farm Bureau Federation has announced itself as unalterably opposed to the amendment as it now reads, "The Congress shall have the power to limit, regulate, and prohibit the labor of persons under eighteen years of age." This, officers of the national farmers' organization declare, give Congress the power to prohibit farm boys and girls from farm work. Such work, the American farm bureau points out, is not injurious to the boy or girl, but on the contrary is healthful and on the basis of prices now paid for farm products must be contributed if the farm family is to make any kind of living.

The results of the referendum will be announced in a few days at farm bureau headquarters here.

Gracious! How fat Betty is getting.

That's because she daily doesn't.

Then there is the story of the two soldiers in the trenches. Mail has just been distributed. One is sitting on an empty biscuit tin gazing at the letter he has just received.

"Why Jock, what are you looking at that blank sheet so long. There's not a word on it. How is that?

"Why, it's this way, Willyum: the wife and I were not speaking when I left."

The telephone girl in New York hotel answered a queer call over the house exchange the other morning about 11 o'clock. When she "plugged in" a man's voice said: "Hello, is this the So-and-So Hotel."

"Why no," answered the girl, "this is the Such-and-Such hotel."

"Oh, all right," said the man. "I just woke up and didn't know where I was."

Some things that come to those who wait are terriby shopworn.

"Plants are almost as quick to show their displeasures as human beings," reports scientific writer. Who is it then who keps the poison ivy in its perpetual ill humor?

Pershing reluctantly switched from the U. S. Army to the army of the unemployed.

One man whose mere touch makes a woman tingle in every nerve is the dentist.

Second Ditto—"Did it make him angry?"

First Ditto—"I should say so. He said he wished he had called on you."

Knocking the other fellow is the poorest way to boost your own business.

As a rule most self made men can blame it on to their wives.

The Fascinating Mystery of Electric Power

WHEN Aladdin required the services of his Genie he rubbed a magic lamp which it was his good fortune to possess and presently there was at his command a most wonderful servant ready to do his bidding.

In this thrilling Twentieth Century, the fantastic story of Aladdin is no more wonderful than the story of what happens when the modern housewife presses a button in her home.

Instantly she has at her command a servant conjured out of the ether, a silent, powerful, efficient servant, invisible and mysterious. This servant is called Electricity. It might as well be called a Genie because it is just as difficult to explain as Aladdin's good servant.

At the touch of a button this new servant springs into action. The gentle purr of the motor in one's vacuum cleaner, the freshness of the rug in the wake of this device, the cleanliness and efficiency with which it works are but the evidences of this modern genie at work.

When we give thought to the marvels of electric power, its mysterious character, its wonderful efficiency, how it is harnessed and put to work we must realize that we live in a more fascinating age than in the days of fairies and Arabian Nights.

A study of the new rates for electricity will serve to show how one may enlist this modern servant, this genie called Electricity, in household tasks at a low rate

ONE CENT A WORD ADVS. BRING RESULTS

You Can Quickly Limber Up Sore, Stiff, Swollen Joints

Even chronic rheumatic swellings in knee, foot, ankles, arch, hips, elbow, shoulder or finger joints yield to the mighty powerful influence of JOINT-EASE.

It's here, right in town and every live druggist has it.

It's a low price remedy, to be sure, but that doesn't stop it from taking the kinks, lameness or torture out of your troubled joints.

Joint-Ease is the name, so called because it is compounded solely for the purpose of relieving all joint ailments.

Just rub it on the tormented, lame joints and in just a few seconds it will penetrate through skin and flesh straight down to the ligaments and tendons of the joints—right where the agony starts—Then blessed comfort comes quickly.

It absorbs instantly and is so clean that you can rub it on often and get thereby results much more quickly, when the joint is inflamed and the agony intense.

Being such a powerful counter-irritant, it cannot help bringing speedy and helpful results in congestion, sore throat, chest colds, lumbago and neuralgia much quicker than almost any remedy you can buy.

But you must remember that it is for joint afflictions that Joint-Ease is mostly dispensed, and its helpfulness will astonish you after all ordinary liniments and other treatments have failed. All druggists sell lots of it.

C. N. E. Railroad Abandons Track

Interstate Commerce Commission Grants Permission to Abandon Two Short Stretches in Columbia and Dutchess Counties.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, Jan. 22.—The Interstate Commerce Commission has just handed down an order authorizing the Central New England Railway Company to abandon two short stretches of its track in this state, one between Shekomeko and Millerton, Dutchess county, and the other between Ancram Lead Mines and Boston Corners in Columbia county. The hearings in the case were held by the Public Service Commission at the request of the Interstate Commerce Commission and the evidence was turned over to the national commission for a determination.

There was no opposition to the abandonment of the Shekomeko track which is 7.73 miles long. Passenger service was discontinued December 16, 1921, and is now handled by automobile. The freight traffic has been practically eliminated by motor truck competition. The track is in bad condition and it would cost $10,000 to put it in condition, it was testified. The line of which the Shekomeko track is a part, was constructed by the Dutchess and Columbia Railroad Company. It was completed in 1871, and was built primarily as a connecting link in a proposed route between New York and New England, Canada, and the West.

The town of Ancram objected to the closing of the Ancram track. There are two non-agency stations, Halstead's and Tanner's, involved but neither is located in or near a village or hamlet. The testimony showed that automobiles had taken away the pasesnger traffic, and that there is now almost no freight originating at either of the two stations mentioned. The Commission's decision says that abandonment of this stretch will save the railroad about $20,000 a year. Ancram Lead Mines will be the terminus of a branch line from Pine Plians with abandonment of the five-mile stretch. This branch was completed in 1872 by the Poughkeepsie & Eastern Railroad Company from Poughkeepsie to the Connecticut state line.

C. D. OF A. ENTERTAIN AT THE CITY HOME

Monday evening, January 19, the Dramatic Society, with members of the charity committee of Court Santa Maria, No. 164, Catholic Daughters of America, motored to the "City Home" in response to a cordial invitation received from Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Edmondston to entertain the old folks. The entertainment consisted of the following program:

Vocal solos by Master Robert Liscom accompanied at piano by his mother, Mrs. R. A. Liscom. Both numbers were rendered as usual in his sweet, childish voice and regreat applause.

Solo dance by charming and graceful little Bernadette Walker, followed by a rare and difficult toe dance which proved a source of surprise and delight to the folks, coming from so small a child.

Irish clog dance and songs by Misses Mary McCall and Mary Rudderham.

Comedy act entitled "Hanging out the Wash," by Misses Nora Becker and Louise Collier intermingled with songs and dances by Mrs. Louise Collier.

The above numbers were received with tremendous applause and only that the evening was growing late the above numbers would have been repeated. The program finished with community singing after which Mr. and Mrs. Edmondston extended commendable praise and thanks and requested a rising vote of thanks from the old folks to the committee of the Catholic Daughters of America. A social hour followed and ice cream and cake were served.

POULTRY DEPARTMENT ANNOUNCES EGG SHOW

As a feature of the 18th annual Farmers' Week to be held at the state college of agriculture, Ithaca, New York, the poultry department is planning an egg show, which will take the place of the exhibit held heretofore at the poultry production show in the fall.

It is open to all poultrymen in New York state, and three general classifications will be made; section A, general classes; section C, junior classes, and section D, student classes, the last mentioned being open to all students who have taken or are taking work in the poultry department.

The prizes to be given include 12 White Leghorn baby chicks, 12 American breed baby chicks, subscriptions to poultry magazines, and a silver cup for the sweepstakes. First, second, third, fourth and fifth prize ribbons will be given in all of the classes. Officials of the poultry department express the hope that through shows of this kind they can bring about a more economic production of eggs as well as better sorting, packing and grading. The judging will be conducted in such a way as to give to both producers and consumers a better understanding of eggs and their qualities.

Entries close on Friday, February 6, but eggs will be received up to Monday noon, February 9, the first day of Farmers' Week, which lasts through February 14. No entry fee or admission will be charged, and the poultry department will send information regarding the show and entries to any who care to inquire. Judging will be done by instructors in the poultry department.

"INDIVIDUALITY OF DRESS"

"Make Best of Good Points" Is Not Always a Safe Rule

That much-quoted fashion maxim, "Make the most of your good points," is not always the old reliable it seems. Its poor policy to throw into relief a good point that's going to make another feature seem much worse by contrast. This is noticed most frequently in the case of the woman who retains small, shapely feet, in spite of the fact that she had taken on considerably too much weight. Naturally she is proud of that girlish foot and buys fancy slippers and hose which set it off, not realizing that the eye of the beholder is caught by the contrast between the shapely feet and the larger body. Such a woman should content herself with black shoes and gunmetal hose for daytime, with gray for evening, and the shoes should be of the plainest cut.

Boarding House In Delafield Home

Famous Stone Ridge Property to Be Conducted as All-Year Boarding House—Other Real Estate Changes in Ulster County.

One of the largest transactions in country real estate that has taken place in some time is the sale of the property owned by Mrs. Mary Schellmann at Stone Ridge, and widely known throughout Ulster county as the Delafield property, which was built by Dr. Moran's widow several years ago and at that time it was considered the show place of Ulster county. The property contained about 10 acres of land with a magnificent house of 15 rooms with all city improvements, five open fire-places and large foyer hall. The property is located opposite the Leggett estate and was purchased by Steven Breitfeller and his wife of 12 Carlton avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y. Mr. and Mrs. Breitfeller will establish it as an up-to-date all year round boarding house. At present they are conducting a large restaurant in Brooklyn. Mrs. Schellmann will move to Hoboken, N. J., where she has a furnished apartment.

The deal was consummated through the office of I. Paradies of this city, Robert G. Groves representing the purchaser and Newton H. Fessenden the seller.

The former Patrick D. Baldwin home, which was sold to I. Paradies last fall, has been resold by Mr. Paradies to Edward L. Daniels and his sister of 96 A Monitor street, Brooklyn, N. Y. Mr. Daniels and his sister contemplate making this their permanent home. When Mr. Paradies purchased it he added a number of improvements, which makes it one of the most select private homes in Ulster county.

Mr. and Mrs. John Weninger, who purchased several properties through I. Paradies in this section of Ulster county, have now also taken possession of a property located at West Hurley on the state road. This property was purchased some time ago by the broker of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Sparling. Electric lights have been installed, water and other improvements have been added, also a repair shop, and in the spring the new owners will handle gas, oils and other auto necessities. Mr. and Mrs. Weninger, who are large holders of real estate in Brooklyn, are disposing of their holdings there, and buying properties in this section.

Genius Seldom Seeks Its Intellectual Mate

Why do clever women marry stupid or insignificant men?

Catherine de Medici married weak Henry II of France; Mary Stuart chose Darnley. Even Elizabeth, that haughty virgin, lost her heart, it is said, to Leicester, who lacked great qualities.

Capable men, of course, are proverbially fascinated by "fluffy" women. Complete and utter ignorance, expressed through the medium of an ethereal beauty, has invariably proved an irresistible attraction to men of genius. Does this infirmity of great and manly minds also afflict clever women? I have heard cynics say—and so probably have you—that only a peculiarly stupid man will put up with a too brilliant and capable woman and play second fiddle to her lead, says a writer in the Washington Post.

Clever women and clever men are notably lacking in a discriminating love instinct. They have not time for these "lighter" matters—and often repent at leisure for their hasty selections. Even Wordsworth could accuse his wife of no rarer charm than that of being "not too good for human nature's daily food: . . .

Yet these unequal marriages do not always end in disaster—or boredom. They can be absurdly happy and successful. Stupid men and butterfly women are usually likable enough—so delightfully noncommittal, so lavish with adoration.

Literature for the most part leaves this phenomenon alone. Shakespeare approaches the subject in "The Merchant of Venice"—and then obscures the problem in a wealth of plot and ingenuity. I cannot think that it will long escape the psychoanalytical novelists of today.

The more prosaic explanation, however, and possibly the truer one, is that clever women marry stupid men for precisely the same reason that clever men marry silly wives—because they feel so utterly complete in themselves but for the element of love in their lives—and this the insignificant provide.

Have You This Habit?

By Margaret Morison

REGINA

ALWAYS Regina's mother and father had stood between her and reality. When Regina wanted a new dress that the family finances could not afford, her mother went without a muff all winter. On the first day that Regina came home from school with a bad report, angry and mortified, a complaint was entered and her teacher was changed. If her younger sister was asked to a party and Regina omitted, regrets were sent. It was not strange that at twenty Regina should be afflicted with elephantiasis of the ego.

Then the day came when family finances broke down. Regina, who felt that her home town did not appreciate her as it should, went away to earn her living. In a strange city as one of several applicants for the position of companion to a rich old lady, Regina was not surprised to be chosen. Naturally any one would want her before others. Even when she learned that her employer had once been indebted to her mother for a kindness, her self satisfaction was not shaken—for was it not HER mother? From the first, Regina took the stand that she was a guest in the house; she insisted on her cup of coffee before she got up in the morning, and upon fresh flowers in her room each week. "Water seeks its own level" was a platitude often on her lips. Then the cook, who had lived with the old lady for thirty years, struck, and Regina found that her own level was elsewhere.

A long interval of seeking and not finding followed. Regina's suit was very shiny, but her self-esteem undimmed, when she read one day a sign in a restaurant window that a waitress was wanted. "A lady can do anything" she whispered to that within which corresponded to her soul as she donned apron and cap. In the same spirit she haughtily refused her first tip and found herself the laughing-stock of the place. Three months later her tactics had changed: for the privilege of being waited upon by HER a customer could not tip too high. One day when she was tipped five cents instead of ten she offered a piece of her mind, was reported—and fired.

As she sat in her lodging-house room, for which she had paid her last dollar, for the first time she sought one answer to her predicament. Then, from a changed angle, she thought of the restaurant as a place where tired working people came to get refreshment, instead of an institution that was run to pay her wages. The old lady's household was now a place where she might have learned the running of an establishment with the least possible friction. Her own home became a group to which it had been her special privilege to bring refreshment.

Suddenly the enormity of her habit of self-consciousness, of seeing in any situation only what affected herself, came upon her, and she asked herself how far, at thirty-five, this horrible habit of self-consciousness had destroyed her power of adjusting to a world made up of many people?

United States Senator Edward I. Edwards of New Jersey, has entered emphatic denial to the testimony of three special agents of the Treasury Department who, during the trial of eleven Weehawken (N. Griffin, the civilian on trial, is charged with being the head of a $50,000,000 bootlegging ring. Just twenty years after graduating from Harvard, Walter S. Father Mabry at Y.W.C.A. Supper

Some hundred and fifteen girls and women thoroughly enjoyed the supper at the Y. W. C. A. on Wednesday evening, when a thoroughly appetizing menu was served. The sauce of good fellowship and merriment adds much to the success of these suppers.

Next week will be "Health Week," and will be duly observed at the Y. W. C. A. supper on Wednesday evening. The speaker will be Dr. Helen Palliser of Poughkeepsie, and possibly Miss Reed, secretary of the Poughkeepsie Y. W. C. A., will accompany her. The announcement of this possibility called forth such a burst of applause that it was plain that all who want to attend next week's supper must surely have their reservations in by Tuesday noon.

The Rev. Gregory Mabry, rector of Holy Cross Church, was the speaker Wednesday evening and out of his own world war experience talked to those present about the American Red Cross during the war. First of all, Father Mabry paid tribute to the splendid welfare war work of the Young Women's Christian Association.

He then told graphically of the Red Cross as he found it at the port of embarkation in France, near the front lines, and of its marvelous hospital service. And always he paid to "The Greatest Mother in the World," a splendid tribute of gratitude, finally bidding it farewell as it served the longed-for ice cream and American pie as the men on the returning transport landed at Hoboken.

Y W C A Bowling Tournaments

English Cathedrals Go Far Back in History

The great cathedrals of England in many instances replace former edifices that were erected by the early Christians who formed part of the ancient British church, and which were later destroyed by fire or otherwise, a writer in the Montreal Family Herald relates. For instance, Canterbury cathedral was first built in 605, on the site of an old church dating from very early ages. It was destroyed by fire in 1607, and Archbishop Langfanc, on taking office in 1070, undertook the rebuilding of an entirely new church. This lasted until about 1100, when under Anslem, Langfranc's successor, Ernlf rebuilt the eastern part. A fire destroyed most of the portion of the building in 1174, and from that year William of Sens took up the work of rebuilding until 1178, when, on his suffering severe injury by falling from a scaffold, another William, commonly distinguished as "the Englishman," carried on the work and completed it in 1184. Many alterations and changes have been made during the ensuing centuries. I might mention that as early as 068, Theodore of Tarsus, of the city of St. Paul, was elected archbishop of Canterbury, not appointed, both the king of Northumbria and the king of Kent acquiescing in his election. He was the first archbishop to receive the allegiance of the whole of the English church.

Resin and Turpentine Put to Various Uses

Resin and turpentine have been produced on this continent since 1662. These commodities were gathered and exported by the early colonists. While they were originally used for caulking wooden vessels and protecting rope rigging, thus gaining their name of "naval stores," chemistry has developed many uses for resin and turpentine, making them indispensable in a large number of important industries, says the Montreal Star.

Soap manufacture leads in consumption of resin, with surfacing of writing and printing paper ranking second. Resin is also extensively used in the manufacture of varnishes, waterproofing compounds, roofing materials, leather dressings, lubricants, sizes, linoleum and electric insulation. Turpentine is an important industrial factor as a thinner for paint, solvent for laks, waxes, rubber and waterproofing compounds, as well as in chemical and pharmaceutical combinations.

CURRENT OFFERINGS AT THE THEATRES

A new and peppy show is programmed at the Kingston Opera House for the last half of this week. Opening with Alvin and Kenny, lively acrobatic artists; Mack and West, beautiful songsters; Elsing and Conroy in a howling comedy skit, "A Trip to Coney Island;" Irving Jones, a one man entertainer, and "The Buster Brown Revue." The photoplay is Rex (Snowy) Baker and the wonder horse Boomerang," in a snappy action thrill drama, "The White Panther."

At the Auditorium tonight Corinne Griffith and Conway Tearle in "Lilies of the Field."

Richard Barthelmess will again prove that he is one of the most versatile motion picture actors in "The Enchanted Cottage," his latest production, which will be the First National attraction at Kerney's for three days starting tonight. "The Enchanted Cottage" was directed by John S. Robertson and adapted from the play by Sir Arthur Wing Pinero.

Harry Ingall's musical comedy, "The Checker Girls," which is playing at the Orpheum all this week offered an entire new change of play Wednesday and was very pleasing. The play will be repeated again today. Tomorrow there is another complete change of program. "An Old County Store" will be offered in conjunction with the play and many valuable presents will be distributed. The picture for today, tomorrow and Saturday is "The Silent Watcher," with Glen Hunter and Bessie Love.

WILMA VANCE TRIO AT MASONIC CLUB SATURDAY

One of the most charming musical entertainments of the season will be given here on Saturday evening at the Masonic Club by the Wilma Vance Entertainers, a trio of gifted young artists who are extremely popular with Lyceum audiences. This will be the last entertainment of this season's lyceum course.

The trio headed by Miss Wilma Vance, a young artist of achievement who deserves the success which has come to her. The organization is a trio of experienced professional artists, and the program is exceedingly interesting from the double standpoint of artistic worth and musical variety. It is a distinctively worth while program.

Miss Vance, impersonator, characterist and trumpeter, is a graduate of King's School of Oratory, Pittsburgh, and post graduate at a large dramatic school in Boston. She has also studied with Grant Connell, director of the Columbus Institute of Music. She is extremely gifted in dramatic lines.

Miss Mildred Kiener, pianist, has done public work since early childhood. She studied with Romeo Gorno of the Cincinnati College of Music and later with Grant Connell, director of Columbus Institute of Music. She is a trained and experienced accompanist as well.

Loren Sobel is a most promising violinist of the younger school. He has studied with Paul C. Lehmann for a number of years and has enjoyed frequent recital engagements in many of the cities throughout the east and middle west.

Glass of Milk Equals Egg

As a tissue-building food milk is recognized as in the first class, but it remains for the food chemists to tell how a glass of milk compares with other edibles. As for protein, they say one glass will provide as much as one large egg, twelve oysters, three potatoes, two and a quarter shredded wheat biscuits, five slices of bacon, twenty apples, six bananas or two thick slices of whole-wheat bread.

Sea Cucumber a Fish

The sea cucumber is really a living creature and not a vegetable. Its other names are the trepang or holothurian. The body of this strange dweller in the sea is composed of a muscular tissue covered with warts or spines, and which generally resemble in shape their vegetable namesake, says the Boston Globe.

Sea cucumber is considered a great luxury among the Chinese, Malays and other Eastern peoples, and its gathering and preparation for the market is a flourishing industry among the islands of the Pacific. White men who have eaten sea-cucumber soup declare it to be delicious. The trepangs, which grow from ten to fifteen inches long, are gathered from coral reefs. They are then boiled, dried in the sun and hung over a fire, which gives them a smoky taste.

The Difference

The difference between a "tomahto" and a "tomato" is regarded by some as the difference between "high culture" and agriculture, says the office boy.

Presidential Succession

Succession to the Presidency, in case both President and vice president should die is: Secretary of state, secretary of treasury, secretary of war, attorney general, postmaster general and secretary of the navy.

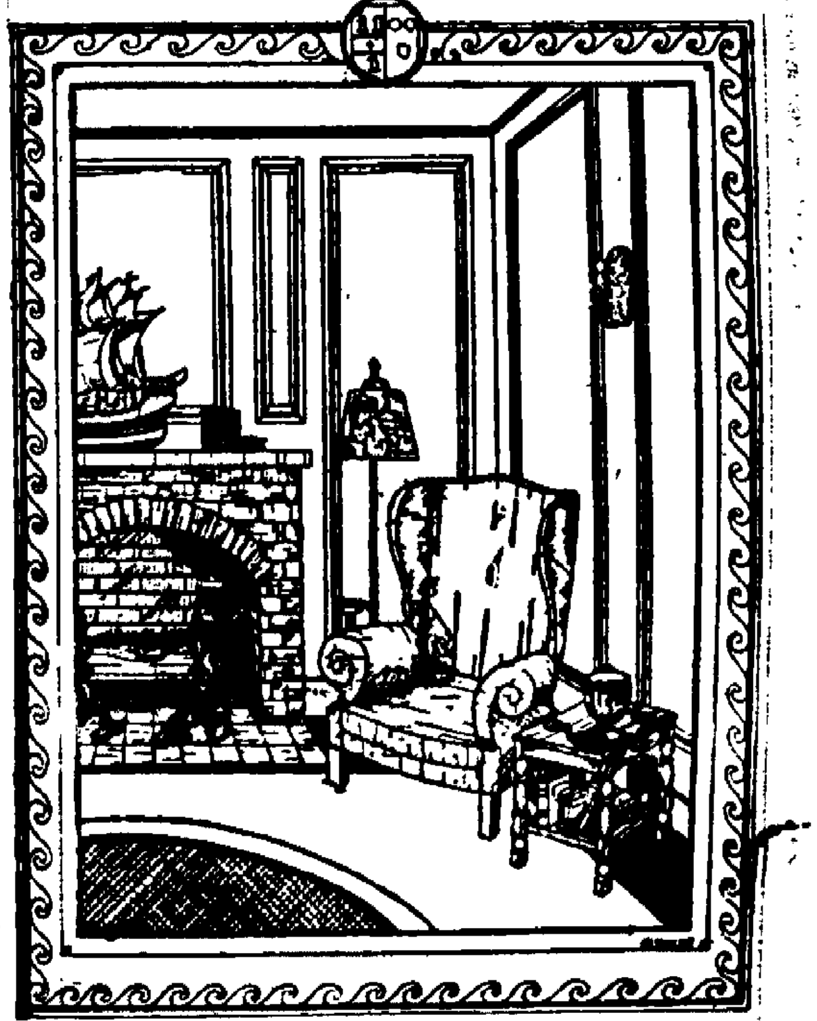
Tree's Odd Growth

The banyan tree is peculiar. Its branches send roots downward, which, when they have become rooted, become props, and in this manner the tree spreads over a great surface and endures for many ages.

Rifle Inventions

The flint-lock rifle was invented in France in the year 1630. The percussion-lock rifle was patented by a Scotch clergyman named Alexander Forsyth in 1807, and had been adopted everywhere by 1820.

A Comfy Room Where Man Is Sovereign



WHAT room could have about it more the atmosphere of a place for a man to secret himself among his trophies and books than the one sketched above? From the old ship model, beautifully preserved in its coat of velvet finish varnish, to the handy table in a colorful enameloid, the room bespeaks its ownership.

The walls and ceiling are in a soft gray old Dutch enamel, the latter being a trifle lighter in tone. The panels and mantel-piece as well as the floor are finished in floorine, a varnish and stain combined.

The tiles bring out the glow of the fire as they are done in a deep rich red, and the andirons in a flat tone black paint. The comfy chair is of a vari-colored velour tapestry and the room is further enhanced by having the rug brought out in a warm red combined with deep blue and gray shades.

An individual touch is given through the adjustable lamp shade. It has an interesting old map glued on the parchment frame being protected and retaining its antique appearance by a coat of velvet finish varnish.

A room so arranged cannot help but prove engaging for it suggests comfort and snugness as well as beauty.

Society Notes

Lowell Club.

The regular meeting of the Lowell Club was postponed from Tuesday afternoon to Wednesday afternoon on account of the storm. The club met with Mrs. Schoonmaker. A very informing paper on "Mexico and its Problems" was given by Mrs. V. B. Van Wagonen and was followed by an interesting sketch, "Foreign Financiers in Mexico," by Mrs. Wonderly. The roll call was "Manners and Customs of the Aztecs." Next week the club will meet with Mrs. Adams. The Lowell Club is completing its arrangements to entertain the Federation of Women's Clubs at an open meeting the first Saturday in February. They will offer a very pleasing program which will be followed by a social hour.

Atharhacton Club.

On Wednesday afternoon the Atharhacton Club met at the home of Mrs. King, who had an excellent paper on "Emerson." Next Wednesday the club will hold its birthday banquet in the private dining room of The Stuyvesant.

DIED.

RONK—At Buffalo, January 19, 1925, Augusta A. Fuller, wife of the late Arthur K. Ronk, in her 72nd year.

Funeral Thursday, January 22, at the home of her brother-in-law, Melvin Freer, 49 Hammerschmidt Place, Buffalo, N. Y. Interment in the Ronk family plot, Port Ewen Cemetery Friday morning, January 23, upon the arrival of West Shore train from Albany at 6:54 a. m.

24 Injured When Trolley Lands on West Shore Track

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Hoboken, N. J., Jan. 22.—Twenty-four were injured, some of whom were expected to die, when an electric trolley car in which they were riding jumped the track over the West Shore railroad yard trestle and catapulted down a forty foot embankment to the railroad tracks below.

The car was bound from the Hoboken terminal of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railroad for Passaic and Paterson and was travelling at a speed of twenty-five miles an hour.

A hurry call for ambulances was sent out. The injured were taken to St. Mary's Hospital in Hoboken. Police reserves were called and immediately stopped all traffic leading to adjoining streets where first aid stations were established.

The accident came without warning and the passengers on board suddenly found themselves rolling down the steep embankment. A railroad train had passed the spot where the car plunged on a minute before.

Forst Offers $100 For Trade Name

The Jacob Forst Packing Company of this city, who a few days ago started a contest for a suitable brand or trade name to be used on their hams or bacon, offering a cash prize of $50 for the name selected, has doubled the amount to be awarded the winner. The prize now offered by the local company is $100.

The contest, which will close on February 14, has created, from the amount of mail received at the office of the company, as much interest as cross-word puzzles. The big difference is the cash award. Anyone is eligible to complete in the contest. The name submitted should be associated with the Forst products, which are very widely known throughout the state. Residents of cities along the Hudson are also entering in the contest in large numbers.

All mail should be addressed to Rondout Station, Box 191. Details of the contest will be found in an advertisement in today's issue of The Freeman.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 22.—The payment of state bonuses to the next of kin of all deceased World War veterans was virtually assured today when the Senate finance committee reported a bill sponsored by Senator J. Griswold Webb, Republican of Dutchess.

Under the measure, the bonus will be paid out of what is left of the $45,000,000 soldier bonus bond issue.

Shriners Will Spring Surprise

It is unusual for the Kingston Shriners' Association not to announce the entertainment for the ball Friday, but the committee who has the affair in charge states, "You wait and see; it's going to be unique and pleasing like all Shriners' affairs." The Shriners always spring a surprise.

The music to be supplied by Zucca and Zita for the concert preceding the dancing and entertainment will surpass all others ever held by the Shriners at the armory.

Those who do not intend to dance will get their money's worth because the entertainment committee will, as in the past, take good care of them.

Personal Magnetism

Watches are sometimes very curiously affected by the magnetism of their wearers. In most cases those who have this effect are dark complexioned.

Two Simple Rules to Aid in Tuning

Methods Which Will Produce Signals That Are Clear and Louder.

There are two simple rules in tuning which if observed carefully will produce surprisingly good results. Not only will you hear more stations—stations you never heard before—but those you usually hear will come in clearer and louder.

In the first place the object in tuning is to get the circuit (or circuits) of your set in resonance at some frequency (or wave length). When you have done this, a signal should be heard if a station is broadcasting on that wave length. If one is not, then you should hear faint artificial or atmospheric noises. When searching for stations, try to maintain this condition of resonance while you shift your tuning controls throughout the range of your set. This is Tuning Rule 1.

Signals from distant stations are usually so weak at first that they are difficult to distinguish from the ever-present "resonance noises." As a result a great many distant stations are passed by undetected. If you want to hear these stations, it is of paramount importance, says Tuning Rule 2, that resonance positions in tune with the wave length of a distant station be approached very slowly and carefully.

Attachments Being Discarded.

When variometers, couplers, condensers, potentiometers, or other tuning instruments are controlled merely by an ordinary knob or dial, it is practically impossible to do this. In trying to obtain proper tuning control, radio engineers first replaced the original small knob with large dials because of the greater mechanical advantage derived. To increase this advantage a small knob with a rubber disk was then placed tangent to the edge of the dial. Imperfect contact producing uncertain control is causing these attachments to be discarded.

The next step toward improved tuning control was the addition of vernier plates to condensers. The limited range of the vernier plates, however, practically forces you to tune with the course adjustment. With the latter it is almost impossible to fulfill the conditions of Tuning Rule 2. As a result many distant stations are missed.

Contact losses and the inconvenient two-knob arrangement have further proven vernier condensers unsatisfactory. Besides, the so-called vernier attachment is invariably controlled by a very small knob. Because of its small size such a knob almost totally counteracts the ratio intended by the vernier.

Solution Is Offered.

—With these problems in mind, there has recently been designed a tuning dial which offers a practical solution. By means of a simple geared mechanism contained within the knob the conditions demanded by Tuning Rules 1 and 2 (see above) are easily satisfied. Such a dial has these additional advantages:

It may be attached readily to any tuning unit, such as variometers, condensers, etc., by simply substituting it for the ordinary dial. Its single knob gives continuous vernier or rapid control throughout the entire range of the unit and eliminates the inconvenience of the usual double arrangement. There are no contact losses through additional vernier attachments. Besides, a standard knob such as this improves the appearance of a receiving set by omitting unsightly additional knobs which are generally scattered unsymmetrically about the panel.

If you are building a set, or wish to improve your present one, you will find it both economical and highly advantageous to buy good plain instruments and equip them with a single knob vernier dial such as that described above. With such tuning controls it will be easy to keep your set in resonance and approach resonance positions in tune with certain stations slowly and carefully. Distant and local stations will then be tuned in with almost equal ease.

Extension Handle Will Aid Radio Set Builder

Occasionally it is desired to have some other form of controlling device for variable elements in a radio set or meter other than a dial. A very simple one may be made by obtaining a knob of composition that has a shaft hole to fit the instruments to be used. Then drill a one-eighth-inch hole in the knob to take an extension handle made from a six-inch length of wood dowel pin. A little shellac will hold the pin in the hole drilled. Then procure a protractor from the nearest stationery store and fasten it to the panel above the instrument shaft and knob and pointer. The pointer may be bought with the knob or made from strip brass.

A Protector for Tubes

To protect expensive vacuum tubes from burning out place a fifteen or twenty-watt electric lamp of the common 110-volt type in series with the "B" battery, so that the current must pass through the lamp before going to the set. This will protect the tubes in case of a short circuit.

Capacity of Grid Condenser

Practice has found that either .0005 or .00025 microfarad condensers are the best for radio reception. The latter is the capacity most commonly used.

Scientists Can Only Surmise Eclipse Results

Scientific Instruments of Every Description to be Used in Making Observations Saturday—Reports of Aeroplanes Observation to be Broadcasted—Weather Conditions Uncertain.

By Telegraph to The Freeman

New York, Jan. 22.—The government weather bureau added tensity today to the universal interest in the eclipse of the sun Saturday by declining to forecast whether or not the sky will be clear for this great solar event. There will be, however, "a special eclipse forecast" issued on Friday.

But man, in his ingenuity, set about months ago to defeat possible unfavorable weather conditions. The giant dirigible Los Angeles, now at Lakehurt, N. J., will travel the aerial highways and make scientific observations and take photographs of the phenomenon.

So too will twelve De Haviland army observation aeroplanes under the direction of Major William N. Hensley, Jr., commandant at Mitchel Field, L. I. The De Haviland planes will soar three miles above the earth if necessary, it was said. They will be equipped with numerous instruments for scientific and astronomical deduction and with cameras as well.

Broadcast Aerial Observations.

From the ether, Major Hensley will send back to earth radio reports of the aeroplane eye view of the eclipse. This report will be relayed through station WJZ.

The most favored localities to view the eclipse will be those in a pathway 70 miles wide which begins, roughly speaking, northwest of Duluth, Minn., and stretches eastward to New York city, New Haven, Conn., Newport, R. I., and on into the Atlantic ocean.

New Haven Becomes Mecca.

New Haven, Conn., and its famous observatory, Yale, will be the mecca for astronomers and physicists, special trains will be run to New Haven for laymen and scientists of world wide fame to arrange the adjusting of their sensitive instruments.

New Haven is the mecca because it will be directly in the full shadow of the eclipse and the scientists will have a maximum of two minutes in which to make their observations.

Harvard and Princeton universities in cooperation will attempt to fix the position of the moon at the time of the eclipse. The government has assigned a special aeroplane to make observations for Amherst College. There is in fact hardly a university or scientific body of any importance in the world but what will take some part in the event.

Surmising Results.

Scientists themselves do not know what to expect; new stars may be discovered, the Einstein theory of relativity may be definitely proved; the heat of the sun will be measured; photographs will be taken of the corona (the gaseous envelope surrounding the sun); magnetic currents will be studied, and radio instruments will be closely watched for potential reactions.

The layman will have his own highly interesting free show. The most important manifestation for the layman will be the approach of the eclipse. The apparent shadow of night will come toward him out of the west at a speed of 60 miles a second. It will be an eerie sensation. There will be an awesome stillness. If he is in the country he more than likely will hear roosters crow and dogs barking as at night.

Danger of Sun Blindness.

The layman looking skyward must beware, the astronomers warn, of "sun blindness;" smoked glasses should be worn. The laymen will see the most marvelous of solar pyrotechnics, the Corona. He will see "prominences," as the astronomers term them, shooting out from behind the moon. These "prominences" are flames or sun explosions and they rise in the air anywhere from 20,000 to 100,000 miles—some astronomers say 500,000 miles.

Strange and as yet unexplained "shadow bands" about two inches wide may appear on the earth.

This will be the last opportunity for people now living to view the eclipse for the next will be 220 years hence.

The Reason

"Do you remember, dear," said Mrs. Blank, "that before we were married you always offered me your left arm?"

"Yes," replied her husband, "I wanted to have my right hand free. You see, I had a lover's fear that someone would try to take you away from me, and I always kept it in readiness for defence."

"How sweet! But how is it that now you usually offer me your right arm?"

"Well, I am not so afraid as I was."

Costly to Grow Tall

"Sorry, but I can't insure you—you're too tall," said the agent to the man who wanted to take out an accident policy.

"Too tall? What's the matter with that?" protested the applicant. "And anyway I'm not so tall as my father was and he had no trouble getting insured."

"But your father," the agent explained, "was insured long ago when there was no danger of a fellow having his head knocked off by a skidding airplane."—American Legion Weekly

Steel at Highest Since War Time

U. S. Steel Common Again Takes Leadership in Stock Market—Sales in Heavy Blocks—Rumors of Melon and Seven Per Cent Basis.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Jan. 22.—The brilliant record of United States Steel Common overshadowed every other development in the stock market today. Regaining its position of leadership both in the volume of sales and the buoyant movement in prices, United States Steel mounted to 128¾, establishing a new high record which was only about 8½ points below the record high of 1917.

Sales in Steel Common were unusually heavy with blocks of from 500 to 5,000 shares reported on the tape. Confidence was expressed in the financial district that the stock would be placed on a regular seven per cent dividend basis at the meeting of the directors next Tuesday while some of the more enthusiastic bulls were also predicting a melon in the form of a stock dividend.

Stocks of the popular independent oil companies were the leaders in a strong rally which carried prices from 1 to 5 points higher than the previous close.

Cast Iron Pipe, American Can and other of the spectacular market leaders gave another demonstration of their strength today as bears rushed to cover and bulls determined to follow their advantage.

Cast Iron Pipe's rise to 169 for a gain of 4 points was due to the publication of its annual report, showing earnings of more than $40 a share last year and to the announcement that all back dividends on the preferred stocks had been declared, placing the common in line for a share of the profits

American Sugar Refining pushed forward to 59¼, a gain of about 2 points for the day and 11 points in a week. American Can sold about 165 for a gain of 2 points; Commercial Solvents A and B stocks gained 12 points each. Mack Trucks and General Motors resumed their advance in sharp contrast to the market action of Chandler Motors which declined to 28½, a new low for the year.

Buoyancy in the grain and foreign exchange markets exerted a favorable influence on the security markets, as also did the action of the call money market, where rates were again marked down from 3 to 2½ per cent.

Morgan Recital Very Pleasing

A song recital was given at the High School Auditorium on Wednesday evening by Rhys Morgan, Welch tenor, and Stewart Wille at the piano, under the auspices of the Kingston Kiwanis Club.

While Mr. Morgan has what would be considered a lyric tenor voice, it is quite different from the usual English tenor in quality. The English tenor voices are usually flute-like while that of Mr. Morgan has much more of the quality of a reed instrument. He also possesses a genial personality.

Of the group of Old English songs that he sang, "Pretty Creature," (arranged by Wilson) was best suited to his voice and best sung.

Two Handel numbers, especially "Sommi Dei," and "Sound an Alarm," from Judas Maccabeas, were well sung and for an encore Mr. Morgan sang a dainty little song, "A Heart Misled."

He also sang two old Welsh songs in that language, one being a simple love song, the other a lament and prayer. One of the best numbers sung by Mr. Morgan was "Ouvre Tes Yeux," by Massenet.

The singer was particularly fortunate in his accompanist, for Mr. Wille brought forth a lovely, resonant tone, playing with a flowing grace and following the soloist intimately. His playing of a group of three piano solos was a rare treat, impressing one more with the fact that he was bringing lovely music well interpreted, from the piano than that he was a pianist. He played Beethoven's "German Dance;" Shuman's lovely "Romance;" and "Etude Heroique" by Leschetizsky. For an encore he played most musically "An Irish Tune from County Derry" by Percy Granger.

In the last two groups of songs sung by Mr. Morgan, two were written for and dedicated to him. They were "My Desire" by Cadman, and "Sing Again," by Protheroe. In place of the scheduled "A World of Song," by Lewis, Mr. Morgan sang a delightful little composition, "Let's Go a Marketing," by Paul Weaver of Kansas.

Lifting Power of Love

Love lifts up the lowest to the highest, places the lowly born by the side of the bright particular star. It binds us to earth; and when our loved one has been taken from us it lifts us to heaven. Who shall tell its glories and its victories? Without it a life passed is like a year gone by without any summer—cold, chilly, unfruitful, without pleasure or charm. With it the worst state is endurable. The palace is but a stable or an outhouse without it—a very prison; the very prison when the loved one shares it is a palace. Such is particular love. When that, upon the freeing of our souls from this "muddy vesture of decay" which incloses it, has grown into general love for our fellows and love of adoration for our Maker we shall not be far off paradise, for indeed heaven's harmony is universal.—Hain Friswell.

Wanted His Share

He was a little, undersized, inoffensive-looking person. He had managed to get on the Broadway express at Times square by the simple expedient of holding his breath and allowing himself to be jammed into the train by the burly blue-coated guard. He found himself in a pocket formed by four men surrounding him. His chin reached up to about their knees. The atmosphere—what there was of it—was stifling. He managed to stand it for about two minutes. Then he twisted his neck up to the man in front of him and said: "Pardon me, sir, but would you mind holding your breath for a moment? I would like to get a mouthful for myself."—Mercury.

Explaining Emotions

Pleasure and pain are only different constitutions of the mind, sometimes occasioned by disorders in the body or sometimes by thoughts in the mind.

May Be Explanation

The principal reason why there are so many fools in office is that there are so many out of office.—Columbia Record.

SCHOOL DAYS

EVERY DAY

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

Life should every day grow brighter:
Every day the load grow lighter,
Every day the will grow stronger,
Every day the heart grow younger—
Every day to failings blinder,
Every day the judgment kinder,
Kinder all we do and say
Every day.

Every day, oh, let us labor,
Every day a nearer neighbor,
Every day a closer brother,
Every day to one another,
Every day the lonely cheering,
Every day a friend appearing,
Helping all along the way
Every day.

Love should every day grow fonder;
Every day we're getting yonder,
Every day the lost ones nearer,
Every day the loved ones dearer;
Every day our faith the surer,
Let our souls grow ever purer,
Braver, better every way
Every day.

Something to Think About

By F. A. WALKER

THE OLD CIRCLE

The natural inclination in man, when he is lost in the woods, or is floundering around in business for which he is not qualified, is to move in a circle.

The carrier pigeon flies straight to his destination; the horse goes unguided through the darkest night to his stable.

A man mey have genius or merely ordinary talent, but if he cannot move straight ahead, think clearly and keep his mind upon his work, he is plodding round and round, arriving at the end of the year at about the same spot from which he started, befuddled a little more and decidedly less courageous.

Such a man, and there are thousands of them, is not built for success. He is apt to take no reckoning of his progress until someone beside him who has been thinking effectively in straight lines, moves up to where opportunity is greater and reward is richer.

This rude awakening causes but a temporary shock to his numb sensibilities, lasting, perhaps a day or two, but producing in him no material change for the better.

If any serious doubt as to his ability should come to him at such a time as this, it is instantly banished as too burdensome, and he continues his aimless trot in the old circle.

He doesn't ask himself whether he is dependable, whether he thinks constructively or whether he thinks at all.

He doesn't ask whether he is given to watching the clock and stealing away frequently from his work to inhale the aroma of his favorite cigarette.

He doesn't ask whether he in all his time in his present position has made a single suggestion of value to his employer.

Ah, no! he has the faculty of avoiding duteous obligations, especially those that would be likely to impose upon him an additional stroke of work, or interfere with his plans for pleasure among his night associates.

Such a man is not qualified for straight thinking or straight going. He is not capable of handling things with intelligence and in the depths of his heart he knows it.

He is a failure, and for no other reason in the world than his own perverseness in moving in the old circle—wandering about the best part of his life in the wilderness.

Mother's Cook Book

Across the fields of yesterday
He sometimes comes to me,
A little lad just back from play—
The lad I used to be.

And yet he smiles so wistfully
Once he has crept within,
I wonder if he hopes to see
The man I might have been.
—Thomas S. Jones, Jr.

FRITTERS

A collection of fritters will be found very convenient. They are nice served as an entree or as dessert.

Banana Fritters.

Mix and sift together one cupful of flour, one tablespoonful of powdered sugar, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one-fourth teaspoonful of salt. Beat one egg until light, add one-fourth of a cupful of milk and add to the flour mixture, then add one tablespoonful of lemon juice and three bananas forced through a sieve. Drop by spoonfuls into hot fat. Drain and serve with lemon sauce.

Cherry Fritters.

Mix one-fourth of a cupful of cornstarch with the same amount of flour, add one-half cupful of sugar, one-fourth teaspoonful of salt, then add one-fourth of a cupful of cold milk and the beaten yolks of three eggs; add gradually to two cupfuls of scalded milk and cook 15 minutes in a double boiler. Add one-half cupful of maraschino cherries, pour into a buttered shallow tin to cool. When cold turn on a board, cut into squares, dip in flour, egg and crumbs and fry in deep fat and drain. Serve with maraschino sauce. This is prepared with the liquid from the cherries.

Fritter Batter.

Take one and one-half cupfuls of flour, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one-fourth teaspoonful of salt, mix well, then add two-thirds of a cupful of milk and one egg, well beaten.

Hot Tartare Sauce.

To one-half cupful of white sauce add one-third of a cupful of mayonnaise dressing, one-half tablespoonful of chopped onion, one-half teaspoonful of vinegar and one-half tablespoonful each of finely chopped capers, pickles, olives and parsley. Stir and mix until hot, but do not allow it to boil.

Kingston Beat Original Celtics, Score 39 to 34

Benny Borgman Plays Sensational Game, Scoring Twenty Points—Morgenweckers Outscore Shamrock Wearers 10 to 4 From Scrimmage—Largest Crowd of Season.

The Original Celtics can lay no claim today to the professional basketball championship, because Benny Borgman played with Kingston Wednesday evening at the local court. The game, which was heralded as "The Battle of the Century," proved to be one of the hardest fought games ever staged on the local court. The struggle was also supposed to be the deciding game of the series, but we learned last evening that it was not.

From start to finish the lead changed hands first the Shamrock Wearers in front and then the Morgenweckers, each having a very slight margin, the game being in doubt until the final whistle sounded. The game was also thrilling and kept the crowd on their feet shouting for baskets.

If the Celtics wore the crown of champions, today Kingston is again on map as the champions, for the prettiest struggle of the season here went to the local representatives, 39 to 34.

Borgman Scintillates.

The ability of Benny Borgman to shoot baskets from the playground with almost free abandon caused the defeat of the alleged Irish. Of the ten doubles caged by the Morgenweckers, Borgman was responsible for seven. The Celtics total was four. Besides making seven fields, the famous Benny made six from the chalk line, for a total of 20 points. Dehnert, the biggest man on the court, playing the smallest man, didn't do so well as the score indicates.

Celtics Shoot Fouls.

It is needless to say that the Celtics did best from the fould line, they always do. But the advantage of shooting 26 to Kingston's 19 fouls was not big enough to overcome the number of fields.

Referees Aplenty.

There was not a shortage of referees for the much mooted struggle for Solodar and Murray were on hand to handle the struggle. Solodar was given the job and he earned his money. Manager Furey, who was in attendance at the game together with the usual number of sub-managers, wanted Murray to be the eleventh man in the cage. Morgenweck was staging the game, therefore Solodar refereed.

If Murray was in the cage it is very doubtful if the Celtics would have been treated any better. The total number of fouls called was 77, 45 on Kingston and 32 on the visitors. Out of its total the losers made good 26 and Kingston 19.

Outscored From Floor.

In the opening session Borgman made four out of the five field goals made by Kingston, and four out of the nine fouls caged. Kingston's total at half time was 19.

In the same period the Celtics made three from the floor and 11 from the correction line. Their total was 17.

In the last half session the ability of the local representatives to keep the famous quintet from scoring but once from the playground, went a great distance in winning the struggle. In this session the Celtics were but able to cage one field and made good 17 fouls. Kingston in the night cap session added five more fields and made good 10 from the complimentary line.

Tome Played Good Game.

Charlie Powers did not get into the struggle. Tome getting the pivot job. The veteran court star proved that he was still in the game. Besides sinking two fields and registering three from the chalk line he played a good game at center. Lopchick got the tap off more times but the veteran Tome played a splendid floor game.

Leonard Did Best.

Leonard was the leading scorer for the losers, making 10 points, one field and eight fouls. Leonard was given 18 free shots. Riconda was the chief offender, but it was questionable if he was the real offender.

Celtics Forge Ahead.

A few seconds after the whistle sounded Leonard registered a field basket for the Celtics, getting a pretty pass from the center. Dehnert followed up with a single and Leonard made the score 4 to 0, when he made good from the chalk line.

Kingston Leads 19 to 17.

Borgman broke the ice for the locals caging a field and Riconda followed up with a foul. Kingston went into the lead shortly afterward when the famous Borgman made another pretty shot from the floor and Tome made good from the chalk line. Lopchick scored his first field and a foul at this time putting his team in front. But Kingston was not to be downed as it finally proved, for Borgman made good from the foul line, followed by Riconda with a single and then Borgman made his third field of the period. After a few fouls were registered on each side Johnny Beckman, known as the Babe Ruth of basketball, made his first points, a pretty field from long distance. The Celtics were then in the lead and it was necessary for the Morgenweckers to cage baskets that counted and this they did. Before the period ended Borgman hurled his fourth field of the first half and then Carl Husta added another from the floor. Lopchick shot a foul, which ended the first half session, with the locals in front of a 19 to 17 tally.

Morgenweckers Won.

With a two point advantage, the Kingston team started off as winners. Borgman caged another field and he was followed by Riconda from the foul line. After Lopchick, Leonard, Holman, and Dehnert each caged a one-pointer, Maurice Tome put in a field and followed up with a foul, keeping Kingston in front. Four more fouls were made by the Shamrock Wearers, but these points were offset when Tome and Borgman each caged a field. At this time possibly a more excited crowd was never seen, if anyone present knows about this, I doubt it, for the crowd to a man was a part of the uproar. The Celtics kept in the running drawing fouls and making good. After the two pretty fields caged by the locals, each made a number of one-pointers. Johnny Beckman caged a field from over half the court, bringing the score to within two points of a deadlock, and with but two minutes to go. Borgman again proved that he was here to win the game, when he took the ball from the opponents' basket, making "a Notre Dame run" and caging one of the fastest two-timers that was ever seen on any court. Tome made the lead five points caging a foul. In the final seconds the Celtics were unable to tally. The score, Kingston 39; Celtics 34.

Interesting Pairs.

There were some very interesting opponents paired during the struggle. Carl Husta played Johnny Beckman. Beckman's total was but six. Artus was pitted against Holman, the latter did not score from the field and made good but four from the floor.

The veteran Tome played the youngest member of the Celtics, Joe Lopchick, the latter made one field and six fouls. The biggest man on the court, Dehnert, played the smallest man, Borgman. The latter made 20 points. Two tough customers were matched when Leonard met Riconda. The latter was held scoreless from the floor.

Season's Largest Crowd.

The biggest turn out of the season witnessed the best game. All the reserve seats were sold far in advance, and the standing room was packed. Present at the game were fans from all over the Hudson, which included many familiar baseball faces. Freddie Whetmore was among those present.

Another Game.

The game last evening was scheduled to be the deciding game, but for some strange and not so strange reasons it was not. Thursday according to the announcement made at the game last night, Furey demanded a game on February 22 to be played at Madison Square Garden. In order for the game to be played last evening, Morgenweck was forced to make the agreement. One big item rests in the local management's favor; no guarantee was mentioned. The game will be played on February 22 and the local management expects to get a pretty sum, similar to the amount Furey received for last evening's appearance.

Big Moments In Sports

The mercury had risen around 100 degrees and hovered there as a crowd of 60,000 sat in the stands at the last Olympic games and gasped for the next breath of fetid, oppressive air. The day was a heart-breaker, and when it is hot in Paris it is said that Mephisto curls his tail upward and treads lightly the fevered macadam of the boulevards.

Suddenly a movement, a semblance of activity among the group of officials at the stadium gate. They make way expectantly and a runner appears. It is the great Paavo Nurmi of Finland and he is just about to compete the most malignant cross-country race ever conducted. He is quite alone.

The light blue of his jersey is turned indigo with perspiration, his running trunks cling dankly to his legs as he moves on to the finish. It is the only time the writer has seen Nurmi give an outward sign of weariness. He finishes.

Ritola is Second.

A full minute and a half later Willie Ritola comes into view and doggedly makes tthe round of the track to the finish. By this time Nurmi has removed his shoes and is walking up the straightaway in his brisk, alert fashion. He looks at Ritola curiously as they pass, but says not a word. Although teammates, they were and still are unfriendly.

Thus far the proceedings were almost banal; quite without a throb. Another runner entered and dragged his weary bones to the finish. Then the dramatics.

Earl Johnsoin, negro athlete of Pittsburgh, was the next man in sight and the Americans in the stands went wild. Earl was in the borderland between sanity and delirium. He proved it by ignoring the pole position and carefully running around the outside edge of the track as he finished fourth.

Falls Near Finish.

Next a Frenchman. He reeled and weaved as he came and suddenly collapsed 50 yards from the finish. Others in the field were bearing down upon him, another Frenchman in the van. The victim labored to his feet.

In a few strides he reached a white line that had marked the finish of the 100-metre race. Assuming that he had reached the end at last he sank to the ground in utter exhaustion and never got up.

The other Frenchman stood at his side urging him to do something that mortal flesh no longer could. He stayed with his prone comrade until the approach of other runners, reeling and wallowing in their tracks, forced him to abandon the now unconscious man. The latter was picked up and carried away.

American Collapses.

Johnny Gray, an American, was running in fourth place as he crossed the tennis court outside the stadium. He was almost at the gate when he collapsed. Another runner entered the enclosure and turned the wrong way of the track. An official tried to heal him off by brandishing a flag. The heavy staff hit the runner on the head and he passed right out of the equation.

Stumbling, staggering blindly, the remnant of what had been a representative field came on to the finish and dropped in mid-stride. As fast as they fell they were dragged away to join less fortunate competitors who had collapsed at other points along the route, some of them in a precarious condition. Of the original fifty-four going to the mark only fourteen finished.

Reporters rushed about, wild-eyed, trying to confirm or obtain denial of reports that this man or that man had died from the strain. However, as the cool of twilight came on the last contestant had been accounted for.

By that time Paavo Nurmi was finishing a placid dinner in his training camp.
